MOTHER OF Mildred Donovan DEMANDS CARTER'S DEATH

WOODBURY TELLS HIS OWN STORY

"This is the old story of Cupid and a crossed telephone wire," said Attorney William H. Lewis, counsel for Milton A. Woodbury, addressing a jury in the Suffolk Superior Court today. Woodbury is defendant in a suit for $1,700 for meals and lodging and money loaned, brought by Mrs. Elizabeth T. Woodbury-Beals. Mrs. Beals and Woodbury were married in June, 1910. In July, 1912, Woodbury found that Mrs. Beals' first husband was still living. He then began proceedings for an annulment of the marriage. She also brought a divorce suit against Beals. Later she brought suit against Woodbury.

Mrs. Beals and witnesses for her have been testifying before Judge Hitchcock and the jury for several days. Today Woodbury took the stand in his own defence. Before he began his testimony, Attorney Lewis addressed the jury. He said:

Calls It an Old Story.

"This is an old story of an acquaintance and flirtation, and a marriage ceremony which followed. This man and woman lived as husband and wife—then the husband found his wife had another husband living from whom she had never been divorced. He left her and she now sues to recover for services which she voluntarily gave during the marriage.

Woodbury said he lived at No. 41 Bickersteth street and is employed at No. 259 Washington street. He said he met Mrs. Beals over the telephone.

"I called for a young lady and got Mrs. Beals" he said. "We jollied over the telephone. I asked if I could come up and she said I could come next day. I went and met her next day.

Q.—When did you marry Mrs. Beals?
A.—In June, 1910.

Q.—Do you owe her anything? A.—No, sir.

Q.—When you lived at Mrs. Beals' house before you were married did you pay room rent and for all meals? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—While you lived at No. 563 Massachusetts avenue after you were married who paid the bill? A.—I did.

Q.—After you moved to Stickney avenue, Somerville, who paid the bills there? A.—I did. I paid the rent, bills for food and gas.

Q.—Who paid the bills after you moved to Dudley street? A.—I did. I paid for food, rent, telephone and bought clothes for Mrs. Beals.

Q.—How long did you live at Dudley street? A.—Until I left Mrs. Beals, in July, 1912, I think.

Learned of Husband.

Q.—Do you remember when Mrs. Beals' son had an operation? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you pay the bills for that operation? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you get the money? A.—Out of the bank.

Q.—When did you hear Beals still lived? A.—In July, 1910, I think.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I consulted Attorney Noyes and Attorney Dyar.

Q.—In the Summer of 1912 did you go to Rhode Island? A.—Yes, I went there with witnesses to identify Mr. Beals.

Q.—Did Mrs. Beals go with you? A.—Yes. Mrs. Beals waited outside a house with me in Pawtucket while witnesses went in to see Mr. Beals. She said she didn't feel equal to it. When we found Mr. Beals she gave a scream and said she would jump into the river.

Q.—Did you see her after that? A.—Yes. I went back home with her to get my things. She said to her boy: "It's all off, he's alive."

Q.—Did you see her after that? A.—Yes. I walked to the house with her one day. She begged me to come back, but I told her I was through. I gave her $25, all the money I had.

Q.—And after that? A.—She called me on the telephone several times and told me that she would shoot me and shoot herself if I didn't go back to her.

Q.—When you went to get some things before you left her home, did you find anything missing? A.—Yes, I found several checks missing from my bureau drawer. Mrs. Beals said she had them and intended to keep them to put it all over me in case I left her.

Woodbury testified that he and Mrs. Beals arranged to take the Broadway Theatre at Somerville and that they were to share the profits, if there were any profits.

Woodbury denied that he agreed to pay

MAYOR URGES REGULATION OF DANCE HALLS

Regulation of the public dance halls of Boston was demanded today by a committee which called upon Mayor Fitzgerald.

The committee desired all dance halls closed at midnight.

They want matrons provided for the cloak and reception rooms of the public dance halls, such women to be paid by the management.

They desire a large force of inspectors attached to the amusement license division of the Mayor's office.

The committee consisted of C. C. Carstens, John D. Adams, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Jane R. McCrady, Lillian V. Robinson and Mrs. Robert Grant, all connected with the Public Recreation League, which has been making a study of the methods and conduct of public dance halls.

When Miss Curtis suggested that the Copley-Plaza and other first-class hotels be exempted from conforming to the midnight closing hour for the ball rooms the Mayor voiced his opinion of the conduct of certain of the fashionable dances held in the Back Bay.

"I would not under any consideration exempt the hotels from conforming to the midnight closing hours," said the Mayor. So far as my observations go, they are the worst offenders and they could well set the rest of the city a good example by starting this movement for earlier closing."

"At very few of the debutante parties and fashionable social events in the Back Bay does the dancing really begin until nearly midnight and it runs until the early hours of the morning. They also participate as freely as in the more public dance halls in the dances which have been forbidden by this office."

GIRLS BATTLE ON A CROWDED TROLLEY CAR

A vivid description of a combat between two young women on a Tremont street car was given today in court. The participants were Mary Collins of Roxbury and Annie Kilroy of Massachusetts avenue.

The encounter was the climax of a three-year feud.

Mary Collins admitted that she had known Annie Kilroy three years and that they had a skirmish twelve months ago. She added:

"I was sitting in the car, which was crowded, when Annie and an escort came in. They stood near me. Her companion annoyed me so much I was obliged to change my seat. That was all I did, and for it Annie punched my nose."

"She passed a highly insulting remark," testified Miss Kilroy, and I followed her up and slapped her face."

Other witnesses said that no hostilities started at the Castle square bridge and insisted until the car reached Dover street, two blocks away.

Judge Sullivan discharged Mary Collins and placed Annie Kilroy's case on file.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—In a special message to Congress today President Wilson urged the immediate adoption by the United States of the international anti-opium legislation in which practically all the nations of the world have concurred. The message transmits a report from the Secretary of State, asking for $200,000 to continue the anti-opium crusade.

EXPERT ACCUSES MELLEN

The charge that President Mellen of the New Haven Railroad had realized personal profits by sales to himself of New Haven stocks was made before Commissioner Prouty at the hearing resumed today in the Federal building by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Examiner of Accounts Brown of the commission, who has inspected the New Haven's books, testified that in a single transaction President Mellen received $102,000 profit, and that the records showed no accounting from him for this profit.

Mr. Brown declared that Mr. Mellen, as president of the New Haven, had sold to himself, as president of the New Haven's consolidated railways, 15,000 shares of New Haven stock at 106 which he had bought for 105. This meant a profit of $1 per share for Mr. Mellen, it was stated.

$1,682,000 Deal.

Examiner Brown further charged that Mr. Mellen, as president of the New Haven, had sold 11,000 shares of New Haven stock at a profit of $1 a share to the New England Navigation Company, of which he was also president.

According to Mr. Brown, President Mellen bought 19,835 shares of New Haven stock at $100 per share in 1904, for which he gave a demand note of $1,682,000. The examiner delared the books did not show to whom this stock had been sold, but declared the proceeds of the sales were remitted to Mr. Mellen's special account.

"The profits from these sales after interest adjustments had been made were $102,000," said Examiner Brown. "In all Mr. Mellen received cash for the entire $102,00 profit on the transaction, with the exception of $6,500."

"The books did not reveal any accounting by Mr. Mellen of this profit.

It was also brought out at the hearing that the reason President Mellen and other high officials of the New Haven had not been summoned to the hearing was a fear that testimony from them might give them immunity in the federal prosecution in New York on the charges that the Grand Trunk agreement was in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Questioned by Buckland.

Brown declared that he had examined the books showing the company's finances from 1903 until last year and that in that time the capital stock of the company had been increased from $94,000,000 to $415,000,000. He said the road had spent in the same time more than $50,000,000 in improvements and new equipment.

In reply to questions by Vice-President Buckland of the New Haven, Examiner Brown declared that he knew of one instance where President Mellen had the approval of the New Haven Board of Directors on the purchase and sale of New Haven stock. The examiner said he did not mean to infringe that such transactions had not the approval of the railroad's directors.

URGE MEASURE TO LICENSE BARBERS

Henry Sterling of the State Branch, A. F. of L., and P. J. Sheehan, representing the journeymen barbers, appeared before the legislative Committee on Ways and Means today in support of the bill for the establishment of a state board to regulate barber shops, to examine and to issue licenses to barbers. They said that the purpose of the bill was to elevate the barbers' profession.

MINISTER IS FOUND GUILTY

Rev. T. Arthur Whittaker, a retired clergyman, was found guilty of failing to support his wife and was ordered to pay her $7 weekly by Judge Luce in the Waltham Court today.

The verdict followed charges and counter charges between husband and wife, the only two persons who took the witness stand.

The minister's wife charged undue friendship between her husband and Mrs. Mary Weeks, who keeps a lodging house at No. 203 Broadway, Everett, where the Rev. Mr. Whittaker boards.

When Mr. Whittaker took the witness stand he vigorously defended Mrs. Weeks. He said:

"My wife is the first woman to ever cast reflections upon Mrs. Weeks. She is a woman highly religious and of late time she was a nurse. She has letters and testimonials from many Boston pastors and physicians."

The Minister's Story.

The clergyman later in his testimony said:

"My wife and I have been to Tremont Temple together and during prayer my wife would begin to talk about Mrs. Weeks. At another time my wife produced a $5 bill and told me she was going to buy a revolver and fill Mrs. Weeks full of holes. On another occasion my wife tore my shirt off my back during a fit of temper."

When cross-questioned, Mr. Whittaker admitted that Mrs. Weeks is treasurer and trustee of the Welfare Union Sales Company of Boston, of which he is president. He testified that the object of the company is to "carry the spirit of the ministry into business."

Mrs. Whittaker Now a Nurse.

Mrs. Whittaker is a woman of fifty years. She was dressed entirely in black today, except a white shirtwaist. She is working as a nurse in Belmont. She testified that when she protested against the friendship between Mrs. Weeks and her husband Mrs. Weeks told her to leave the house. Mrs. Whittaker said her husband gave her various costs to go to Waltham to hire a room. He never came to Waltham to look for her, she said.

Mrs. Whittaker testified that when her husband was taken sick Mrs. Weeks took care of him.

Mr. Whittaker said he had but little money. He said he was willing to support his wife, but that his work in getting a union. An effort was made to decide how the three operators are to be elected who are to serve on the joint adjustment committee under the provisions of the agreement by which a strike was averted two weeks ago.

Officials of the company contend that the voting for the three adjustment committee members must be done by all the operators without reference to whether they are union or non-union. The union contends that it represents the operating force. The union will vote tomorrow at No. 7 Warrenton street to pick the candidates.

WEST KENNEBUNK, Me., April 21.—Search was made along the Mousam River today for the body of Harold Marcoux, eighteen, of Everett, Mass., who was drowned by the overturning of his canoe last night. Doctors Declare That the Pope Is Now Convalescent

ROME, April 21.—Pope Pius X. is now convalescent. This announcement was made today at the Vatican by Dr. Marchiafava and Dr. Amici, the two physicians who pulled the Pontiff through his long and dangerous illness. At the same time they announced that because of the steady improvement in the Pope's condition no further bulletins would be issued.

The last bulletin, issued at 4:00 a. m. today, said: "The Pope is sleeping lightly, but naturally and continuously. His breathing is less difficult and less audible. He says that his brother's visit has been a rest for both soul and body."

The cough which bothered the Pope is diminishing, and he has been without fever since last Wednesday.

As he sat in his armchair the Pontiff could look out into the Piazza di San Pietro, which was thronged. When he saw the flags flying the Pontiff asked the reason for the decorations and was told that today was the anniversary of the founding of Rome 2,663 years ago.

"Cities grow with age, while men decline," remarked the Pontiff after a moment's reflection.

SERIOUS CHARGE MADE AGAINST NAHANT FIREMAN

Chairman Charles Vary of the Nahant Board of Selectmen has ordered an investigation into the conduct of the fire department at the fire on Saturday afternoon, which partly destroyed the home of Frank Keller on Irving way.

Charges of conduct unbecoming firemen have been made by Frank Johnson and Arthur Nelson, who gave the alarm.

They charge the firemen were not in condition to fight the fire because of a celebration of Patriots' Day which was interrupted by the alarm. Mr. Johnson said:

"Only one man in the department that responded to the alarm was in fit condition to fight a fire.

"The firemen left the fire as all out. Twenty minutes afterward they had to be called back to put out a second fire, which did more damage than the first. They couldn't see the fire, they were in such condition.

"On the way to the fire they ran over Frederick Larkin, the seven-year-old son of Chief of Police Larkin, breaking his collarbone and otherwise using him up."

PHONE GIRLS CONFER WITH THE COMPANY

A conference was held this afternoon at the office of the New England Telephone Company in Fort Hill square between officials of the company and a committee of nine representing the operators' union. An effort was made to decide how the three operators are to be elected who are to serve on the joint adjustment committee under the provisions of the agreement by which a strike was averted two weeks ago.

Officials of the company contend that the voting for the three adjustment committee members must be done by all the operators without reference to whether they are union or non-union. The union contends that it represents the operating force. The union will vote tomorrow at No. 7 Warrenton street to pick the candidates.

CARTER INQUIRY STARTED

Mrs. Gertrude L. Menard of Revere, mother of Mildred Donovan, whom James B. Jennings, alias Kid Carter, confesses he killed in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, on New Year's Eve, demanded from District Attorney Higgins today the murderer of her daughter be sent to the electric chair.

Mrs. Menard and her husband and their daughter, Mrs. Ethel Sears, have believed since the day Mildred Donovan's body was discovered that Carter was guilty of the murder.

Now that he has confessed Mrs. Menard and her husband are anxious that there be no legal delay in making Carter pay the penalty of his crime.

District Attorney Higgins heard all the things the mother can tell of her daughter.

District Attorney Higgins is actively pushing the case developed by Carter's confession.

He has already held conferences with Attorney-General Swift as to the legal methods to be followed in Carter's prosecution. The evidence of the inquest was so overwhelmingly against Carter the district attorney needs now to pick up only the ravelled threads of evidence.

Mrs. Menard's Statement.

Before leaving for the district attorney's office Mrs. Menard said:

"Carter must be brought to justice for murdering Mildred. I shall plead with the District Attorney to prosecute him to the fullest extent of the law. I shall tell the District Attorney all I know about the case, and so will my daughter."

Mrs. Menard's mother before starting for Cambridge.

The State police were actively at work on the case today.

It was learned today that "Kid Carter" kept a strict watch over Mildred Donovan at her home on New Year's Day. He never allowed Mildred Donovan to leave his sight, it is declared. All day long "Carter" watched the girl and then at night they left the house together. The boxer had a revolver in his pocket all that day.

Three Motives Suggested.

There are three motives for the murder that the police were investigating today. They are as follows:

1.—Did Mildred Donovan tell

1,100 GARMENT WORKERS OUT IN NEW STRIKE

Eleven hundred operatives of the 2,400 affected by the garment workers' strike-settlement walked out again immediately after returning to work today because of the alleged presence of non-union workers in three shops.

The employers at these three shops claim the right, under the strike-settlement reached last week, to employ union or non-union operatives. This was denied by the members of the union, who demanded the immediate discharge of the operatives in question. Upon the refusal of the firms to comply with this demand, the strike was resumed and the matter referred to the executive committee of the union.

Attorneys Nelson and Rheinstein, for the employers, and Samuel Zorn, chairman of the union strike committee, later met in joint conference with representatives of the Boston Clothiers' Association, in an attempt to adjust the difference. It is said that only twelve non-unionists were found in the three shops. No trouble was experienced at the other sixteen shops of the association manufacturers.

KING AND QUEEN ON TOUR OF ENGLAND

LONDON, April 21.—Elaborately guarded from the suffragettes, King George and Queen Mary left England today for a four-days' trip throughout England. The King and Queen will spend most of their time in Cheshire, where they will visit the extensive railroad and pottery works. Plain clothes detectives accompany them and the usual precautions have been doubted.

Munsterberg, of Germany, in Real Romance of Sea

An international romance in a Boston setting with the Chamber of Commerce as an alder and abettor of Cupid is that of Otto Munsterberg, brother of Professor Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard, and Miss Helen F. Rice, Vassar graduate and leader in Buffalo's younger smart set.

The couple's romance began last Summer. It was a shipboard affair at first, Otto Munsterberg meeting Miss Rice on the steamer which bore them both into Boston from travel overseas. Munsterberg was on his way to this city to attend the session of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce at the Copley-Plaza.

Munsterberg, who is well known as a scientist of unusual attainments, and as a business expert of the highest order, was a delegate to the congress, and a conspicuous figure during its sittings in this city.

As soon as the adjournment took place, he went on to Buffalo, and returned with reluctance to his home in Germany. Communication between the couple was kept up by mail, and it is understood that while announcement has not yet been made, the wedding date has been already set.

MINIMUM WAGE BILL FOR ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, April 21.—A woman's minimum wage law will be introduced in the Illinois State Legislature this week, at the instance of the Senate White Slave Committee. It will provide for a permanent commission, which shall have power to fix a scale of minimum wages. The bill, prepared by Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara and Senator Juul, provides for a commission of five members, composed of two employers, two wage-earners and one sociological expert. One members is to be a woman. Employers may appeal from the commission's decision to the State Supreme Court.

URGE REPEAL OF THE BAR AND BOTTLE BILL

Representatives of the liquor interests and of the temperance organizations were busy at the State House today buttonholing legislators on the bill to repeal the bar and bottle act, passed in 1910, which forbids the sale of liquor by the bottle and over the bar in the same establishment. The bill came up in the House of Representatives afternoon for action.

The Anti-Saloon League, which is made up of the various temperance societies of the State, is opposed to the bill. The liquor interests are in favor of it.

The bill has been favorably reported by the Legislative Committee on Legal Affairs. The measure contains a referendum to towns and cities. Those which accept it will repeal the present law, so far as their own municipality is concerned.

The temperance organizations which favor the existing law claim that it has served to decrease the consumption of intoxicating liquors. The liquor people claim that it has caused an increase in the sale of bottled goods. They say that it has simply had the effect of putting certain small dealers out of business because they could not purchase two licenses, one to sell over the bar and another to sell by the bottle.

SAYS MINISTERS SHOULD GET $500 PENSION WHEN 70

"Every minister, when he gets to be seventy, should have a pension of $500 a year and should not be forced to ask for it; it should be given him freely."

So declared Rev. Dr. Asher Anderson, secretary of the National Council of Congregational Church, before the ministers of that body today in Pilgrim Hall.

Rev. W. H. Thrift, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in this city, said that the church which he represented is giving ministers who have reached seventy and had seen thirty years of service in the church $500 a year.

Rev. George L. Cady, D. D., pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Dorchester, was elected chairman of the ministers' meeting for the next year.

The electric car was thrown off the tracks. The injured are George Thibault and Peter Reynolds. They were not seriously hurt.

HOLD SLAYER SUSPECT AT ATTLEBORO

ATTLEBORO, April 21.—Airich Faro of Montreal, detained on suspicion in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Eugenie L. Colbart and shooting Miss Mary Powers and her brother, John D. Fowars, in two of the most daring attempts at burglary in years, was arraigned in court today. The police asked that the case be continued and that Faro be held for a hearing on Thursday.

Faro was taken to the jail at Taunton in default of $500 bonds.

While Faro is being detained, the authorities of three States are making a desperate hunt for Ernest Wilhelm Lorens, the escaped Rhode Island murderer and desperado, whose methods, according to the police, closely resemble those employed in the attempted burglaries here.

Lorens, accounted New England's most terrible living criminal, escaped from the Eastern Prison last Winter, after confessing to scores of attacks on women and children, holdups and burglaries of all sorts.

He is believed to have returned to this State, and to be responsible for this last of the series of outrages which have terrorized this district for ten days, and had their climax in the murder of Mrs. Colbart.

Careless of His Own Life.

A reign of terror such as that which existed in Providence before the capture of Lorens has existed here, in every outrage the method has been the same.

Last week the police of this city had a running pistol duel with a man who was attempting to break into the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad station here. No arrest has been made in this case and no clews were left behind to afford any hope of one.

The slight description which answers to that of Lorens given the police is as follows:

Medium height, heavy build, wearing black suit with visor of cap pulled down over eyes to conceal face.

Miss Powers' Story.

Lying on her bed in St. Joseph's Hospital, Miss Mary Powers told of her experience. She said:

When I heard the shot I rushed to the door of my room and there confronted this stranger man descending the stairs at breakneck speed. I was some feet from him when he made the landing on the second floor and had partly turned in fright to return to my room when he fired at me. That is all I know of the terrible experience.

The two shootings took place within a half mile of each other, the murder at 1 o'clock in the morning, and the second shooting an hour later. The police will today compare the bullets taken from Miss Powers with those in the body of the dead woman, in order to prove that the same desperado was responsible for both affairs.

The motive for the first attempt is believed to be the fact that Eugene Colbart, husband of the murdered woman, recently sold his grocery store in this town for the sum of $800, and this money was in his house in cash at the time.

BELGIAN CRISIS NEAR IN NEW BALLOT BILL

BRUSSELS, April 21.—The turning point in the national manhood suffrage strike is expected to come tomorrow when the Chamber of Deputies will take up the motion of Deputy Masson, which provides for the appointment of a commission to draw an electoral reform bill. Both sides are awaiting tomorrow's meeting of the Chamber with anxiety.

It is feared if the Chamber supports the government's attitude the Socialist strikers will lay aside their calmness and begin a campaign of sabotage.

Liberal members of the Chamber insist that the Masson motion shall go to a vote in the Chamber, whereas the clericals, who control the machinery of government, evidently fear to allow this course.

M. van Derveide, one of the chief Socialist leaders, has adopted a more conciliatory attitude. He believes that the government will have to give way to the demands of the workmen, but insists that the strikers' demands shall not be excessive.

A number of printers and stereotypers have gone back to work.

The publication of at least a portion of the Brussels press. These workers show their sympathy with the strike by donating one half of their salary to the strike fund.

Hundreds of gas workers will join the strike tomorrow. The walkout of these men will greatly inconvenience the city, tying up the artificial gas industry.

PERMANENCE AND BRIGHT'S DISEASE

We have been asked if the recoveries in Bright's Disease made by Fulton's Renal Compound are permanent. Many cases have established permanence.

For instance, in the case of R. M. Wood, Editor of the Wine and Spirit Review of San Francisco, Cal.: It was twelve years ago that the most noted cures in San Francisco established the genuineness of the case. The editor's physician told him that medicine would not avail him and advised him to go to Santa Barbara. He dropped from 225 to less than 180 pounds in a short while. On his return he was put on Fulton's Renal Compound and not only made a recovery but the reality of permanency of it may be judged from the fact that he is well and hearty today, 12½ years after.

Thousands of cases of Bright's Disease have reported progress or recovery under Fulton's Renal Compound. Medical men admit that they have nothing to control chronic Bright's Disease as does Fulton's Compound—early ninety thousand annually. If you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound today. For as long as it can be had at Eliot-Jaynes' Drug Store.

SUFFRAGISTS AFTER THREE HUB ADONISES

Who are the three handsomest men in Boston.

Now don't all you men step forward and hand in your names.

The women suffragists are combing the city for handsome men. They may pick you out today at lunch or dinner. Beware if you see a stern looking woman with a determined air looking you over carefully for the next few days.

The suffragists are to hold a great national pageant at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, and they want handsome men.

They want three men to depict "Truth," "Justice" and "Light" in the tableau. They have sought the aid of Boston suffragists to furnish some modern Adonises.

Former Congressman John A. Keliher has been long noted in Boston for his good looks and charming ways. He is being hard pushed for place by the popular Lieutenant-Governor, David I. Walsh.

Then, There's Cushing.

But the plums are not confined exclusively to Democrats. Speaker Grafton D. Cushing of the House of Representatives is also a candidate. But Speaker Cushing may be ruled out of the contest by one of the conditions imposed by Mrs. Laidlaw, one of the committee.

"After seeing some of the men who recently took part in a play given by the suffrage organization I think it is advisable to take only men who look well in bathing suits or Greek costumes," says Mrs. Laidlaw.

This would appear to make Sam Mahoney, the famous Revere swimmer, a favorite for the contest. Peter McNally, another famous Boston swimming artist, would be a desirable entrant. Both have won fame and fortune by their appearance in bathing suits.

"If my husband were not so busy, I would surely pick him to go," said Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald, the famous Hub suffrage leader, today. "I'm afraid we shall be overwhelmed with material. Of course all our Boston men are material. The trouble we shall have is to confine our choice to three of them.

"I would suggest our search for Boston's three handsomest men be confined to the Men's Equal Suffrage League. This course might cause a great influx into that organization.

Miss Ryan's Suggestion.

Miss Agnes Ryan of the Woman's Journal said:

"I suggest the matter of picking the three men be left to the secretary of the Men's Suffrage League, Joseph McKeller, of their headquarters in the Ames building.

"I am sure among the members of that organization we can find three men measuring up to specifications."

The Back Bay comes forward with two candidates of different types, E. Hooper-Hooper, the famous cotillion leader and social lion, view with handsome "Tom" Goode, captain of the Back Bay police station.

Captain Goode is suggested by his friends as a model type to portray Justice. Mr. Hooper-Hooper is being pushed forward more by reporters' light in the sense of "Sweetness and Light."

THREE BOSTON "ADONISES."—The suffragists are seeking three of Boston's handsomest men to appear in their big national pageant. Here are three Bostonians suggested: Ex-Congressman John A. Keliher, (at the top), Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh, (at the right), and Captain Thomas F. Goode of the Back Bay police staton, who was recently picked to guard Mme. Lina Cavalieri. The other picture is that of Miss Josephine Hammond, as she will appear in the pageant.

Church Love Jury Is Empanelled by Cleveland Pastor

CLEVELAND, O., April 21.—A love jury has been established at the fashionable Boulevard Presbyterian Church. Rev. Dr. R. J. McAlpine, the pastor, proposes to continue it through the Summer.

The idea is to permit young women and young men to send their heart problems to the pastor, who will present them to the congregation and designate twelve members to serve as jurors upon the question, the verdict being sent by the minister to the lovelorn lass or laddie. The first test came in the case of a young woman in love with a man several years her junior. Her query was: "Shall I marry him?"

The pastor selected six men and six women for the jury, all married. They voted in favor of the love match, ten to two. In charging the jury, Rev. McAlpine said:

"Answer yes or no. Remember you are helping a woman to make a life decision. Pray as you consider the question."

BRYAN CALLS FAITH NECESSARY TO MAN

WASHINGTON, April 21.—"Without faith," declared Secretary Bryan in the sound of his Christian Endeavor lectures, "it is impossible to accomplish anything worth while. Faith in the Government does not mean that men shall not see its defects. Our form of government makes it possible to make the government just as good as the people deserve."

COUNTESS NAMES LINER AQUITANIA

LONDON, April 21.—In the presence of a record-breaking crowd, the Cunard liner Aquitania, one of the biggest and most luxurious steamers afloat, was launched today at Clydebank. The Aquitania was christened by the Countess of Derby. A holiday was declared at Glasgow and Edinburgh and thousands flocked to Clydebank for the launching.

HELEN KELLER TALK ON SUNDAY BARRED

BALTIMORE, April 21.—Helen Keller, the blind girl, has been refused a permit to lecture in the Auditorium Sunday, May 11, because an admission fee is to be charged.

EATON, NEARING DEATH, WANTED SIMPLE RITES

Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, a short time before his death, discussed with Judge George W. Kelley, probate counsel for the widow now charged with his murder, the manner in which he would like to be buried, it became known today. This, with the intimation that an attack on the naval record of Admiral Eaton would form a portion of the defence and that Mrs. Eaton's counsel are rapidly getting their case in shape for trial, are new developments today.

A new setback has been received by the State in its search for poison clews, with the discovery that there have been no suspicious sales of poison at the drug store of Duprey & Rendergin at Nantasket. Records at the store, which is open for business only in the Summer show that no poison which in any way could be connected with the Eaton case was sold in the past three years.

Judge Kelley, who has just returned from Washington, had a talk with Admiral Eaton a comparatively short time before he died. Admiral Eaton declared when the talk had in some manner turned upon death, that he had no wish for naval honors at his funeral.

"I want a quiet funeral," the Admiral said. "I have never boasted of my services to my country and I want the funeral simple. There will be no need for naval honors. But there's no need to talk about this. I'm good for many years yet."

Searches Navy Records.

The Admiral, within a few weeks was dead. Much comment was made at the time of the funeral, that the Admiral's burial in Dracut lacked the presence of naval men and that the widow and legatees of the Eaton were the only mourners. It now develops that this was in accordance with the Admiral's wish, expressed at a time when he had little thought it would so soon be followed.

Judge Kelley made a search of the Navy Department's records while in Washington for that of Admiral Eaton. He declares he discovered several entries that were not favorable.

When asked by an AMERICAN reporter today how the Admiral came to retire before he reached the age limit, Judge Kelley said:

"I did not notice that point. In any event, I will not state it."

Judge Kelley's visit established the fact that Mrs. Eaton is not eligible for the pension of from $30 to $50 a month usually paid to the widow of a naval officer of high rank, as Admiral Eaton is not technically considered a "veteran."

Lawyers in Conference.

Judge Kelley had a conference of more than an hour with Attorney Geogan on the points he had collected while in Washington. Attorneys Morse and Geogan will confer tomorrow in regard to the four motions they filed recently in regard to the Eaton evidence and indictment. It has not yet been determined when these motions will be argued.

The defence is declared to be rapidly outlining its case, but is, of course, waiting to ascertain the developments following the forthcoming reopening of the inquest.

There has been much mystery as to the identity of the man who met Mrs. Eaton with a lantern on the night she returned from the Admiral's funeral. Today the AMERICAN discovered he was Michael Lynch, a neighbor, who had often been employed at the Eaton home.

BUSHELS OF MOTH NESTS UNDER FENCE

WORCESTER, April 21.—Four bushels of brownfail moth nests were found under a fence on the west side of Beechmont street. The nests were ready for hatching. Men of the Forestry Department clipped brownfail moth nests from trees in that section last Spring. If the nests hadn't been found there would soon have been enough moths to provide jobs for many more men.

MISS ALICE M'CANDLESS of St. Louis, bride this evening of John Pickering Thomas of Boston.

The marriage of Miss Alice McCandless, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William A. McCandless of St. Louis, to John Pickering Thomas of Boston, will take place this evening at the Central Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, followed by a reception at the home of the bride.

Harold Walker of Boston will be the groom's best man, and the ushers will be David Weitmer of Boston, William A. McCandless, Jr., and Dr. Lee Dorsett.

Miss McCandless will have for her maid of honor her sister, Miss Margaret McCandless, and for bridesmaids another sister and her school chums, Missey Ruth McCandless, Grace Price, Florence Holliday and Mary Ramsey.

Miss Merle Peary, daughter of Rear Admiral Peary, U. S. N., retired, discoverer of the North Pole, is a friend of Dr. Pickering's, and was to have been one of the bridal party, but could not be present owing to a sudden call to go with her father on his tour of southern Europe.

Holmes' 'Heart Aches' at Criticism of Supreme Court

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, the Boston member of the United States Supreme Court, in an unusual and spirited defence of that body from recent criticisms, says:

Judges are apt to be naive, simple-minded men, and they need something of Mephistopheles. I admit it makes my heart ache. It is very painful, when one spends all the energies of one's soul in trying to do good work, with no thought but that of solving a problem according to the rules by which one is bound, to know that many see sinister motives and would be glad of evidence that one was consciously bad.

But we must take such things philosophically and try to see what we can learn from hatred and distrust, and whether behind them there may not be some germ of inarticulate truth.

Justice Holmes feels the attacks on the court are only an expression of the "unrest that seems to wonder vaguely if law and order pay."

BOY DUELIST'S SISTER TO AID VICTIM IN COURT

Miss Lillian Rounds, sister of William Rounds, who is held in $500 bail, charged with assault and battery on Herbert Lazner by stabbing him with a knife, is confined to her room in Pearl street, Cambridge. Only once yesterday did she go out, and then but for a few minutes. A friend called her on the phone and Miss Rounds said she could not leave the house.

Miss Rounds says that she will testify against her brother when the case comes to trial. To a friend of hers Miss Rounds said:

Even though Will is my brother, I am going to testify against him. He did a cowardly act and should be punished for it. The fight was the outcome of some trouble that Will and I had a week previous. I can't tell you all of it, but I received a cut in the neck.

I told Will he was a coward and that he would not dare to treat a man that way. He made some remark to me and when I saw Bert I told him. Well, the fight was arranged. I believed that I was going to see two boys have it out. Will and Bert had wrestled many times before and Bert had been the victor.

I thought this was going to be something like a wrestling match. I never dreamed of, nor would I ever have permitted, a struggle like what I witnessed. Soon after the first blow I saw blood trickling down Bert's face. I became frightened then, but could not think it possible that Will was using a knife.

I was horrified when I saw the knife in Will's hand after Bert had grabbed him. I never saw such an expression on anybody's face as was on Will's. I rushed over to Bert and with one of the other girls assisted him to Beryl Grogan's house, where the doctors came soon after. I fainted twice while I was in the room with Bert. He looked ghastly and I was afraid he was going to die.

I have been told that my brother faces State prison, but I feel I am doing right when I tell the true story about the affair. Bert was honorable. He was doing right and because of that I am going to testify for him as against my brother.

BLACK FOXES

United States Consul Wesley Frost, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, reports as follows:

"A phenomenal expansion is taking place in the Black Fox industry on Prince Edward Island. Although a report upon this subject was published in the United States Consular and Trade Report for March 17, 1911, the development since that time has been so rapid and so important that an entirely fresh treatment is called for."

The ranch of the Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company will be situated near Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, and will contain fourteen pair best bred Silver Black Foxes, for which we have signed agreements.

Ranches on the Island having your foxes to sell will pay from 50% to 100% this year, and stockholders refuse to part with their holdings at double the original cost.

Prices on Black Foxes are steadily increasing. The business is secure, as the breeders will be unable to supply the demands for years to come.

The Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company are offering a limited amount of their stock at par, $100.00 a share. As most all companies heretofore formed have been oversubscribed, those desiring to become interested in our company should subscribe at once. Taking into consideration the success of others engaged in the business, the stock in the Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company should be worth double its par value in one year. 25% of amount subscribed for must accompany the application, and the balance on or before August 1, 1913. Write, telephone or call at our office for prospectus, which contains information from reliable sources.

WOODBURY TELLS 'ENOCH ARDEN' STORY

Mrs. Beals for furniture which she took from her lodging house to put into the theatre and denied that she ever pawned her rings to give money to him to pay the bills at the theatre.

Mrs. Pierce Testifies.

Ida E. Pierce of No. 23 Dexter avenue was called by Attorney Noyes for Mrs. Beals to testify concerning transactions in stocks which it was testified last week Mrs. Beals had conducted for her.

Cross-examined by Attorney William H. Lewis, for Woodbury, regarding a conversation which took place at No. 252 Dudley street, Roxbury, when it is alleged Woodbury had discovered that Mrs. Beals' first husband was still alive, Mrs. Pierce said:

"Mrs. Beals and Mr. Woodbury were both there. Mr. Woodbury said he had gone to considerable expense in busting up Mr. Beals to find if he was still alive. I said to him, 'Lizzie had a good home when you found her and you ought to do the right thing by her.'

"He said: 'I shall pay her all I owe her and see that everything is all right before I leave. My lawyer tells me I can kick her out, but I won't do that.'

"You gave them friendly advice and told them Mrs. Beals could get a divorce, and they could be married, didn't you?" asked Attorney Lewis.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Pierce. The witness then testified to a number of stock transactions in which she had taken part.

She denied that any of the transactions were made through bucket shops. She said that at one time she held a mortgage for between $500 and $400 on a lodging house conducted by Mrs. Beals. She sold the mortgage to Samuel Schriber of No. 19 Moreland street, Roxbury. The mortgage was afterward paid by Mrs. Beals.

Has Anybody Seen Hoolie, Wanted by Miss Thacher?

The handsome Airedale, "Hoolie,"—short for "Happy Hooligan"—is still missing, and his young mistress, Miss Hope Thacher, daughter of Congressman Thomas C. Thacher of Yarmouth and No. 288 Beacon street, is grieved.

Miss Thacher is sorrowful in spite of the fact that her father tells her "Hoolie" isn't worth worrying about. She thinks he is, and advertises for "Hoolie" as "Lost in the Back Bay."

Miss Thacher promises a reward for his return. "Hoolie" has been lost on three previous occasions.

About three weeks ago he was lost somewhere in the Back Bay, wearing a black collar without name. He is thought by this time to be very homesick.

SAYS HE WAS WED WHILE IN LIQUOR

Alleging that while he was under the influence of liquor and "without knowledge of the effect and nature of the performance," he was married March 27, 1911, to a Mrs. Isabella Fuller of Marblehead, Harry Ballard of Marblehead has filed a petition in the Superior Court of Essex County a libel that the marriage be annulled. Ballard further charges in his petition that the parties named in the petition "knowingly and wilfully plotted and procured his condition."

Ballard says he has never lived with his wife.

CATTLE SHORTAGE CAUSES HIGH COST

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Figures showing that in the past seven years, while the population of the United States has increased 11 per cent, the production of cattle has decreased 30 per cent, are among those contained in the report of Secretary of Commerce Redfield issued today and which appears to explain some of the causes of the increased cost of beef.

INAUGURAL BALL STORY IS DENIED

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The report from Paris that Mrs. Anna Wilson Howe, sister to the President, had declared that the inaugural ball was called off by the President-elect because of petty graft incident to the functions of this kind, was denied formally at the White House today. Secretary Tumulty authorized the statement that Mrs. Howe had denied making any such declaration and that the story is without foundation.

PARIS BEHEADS THREE BANDITS

PARIS, April 21.—Callemin, Soudy and Monier, three of the notorious French automobile bandits who were sentenced to death on February 27 for their crimes, were guillotined today in front of the La Santa prison.

Callemin and Soudy died calmly, with no sign of repentance on their lips, but Monier shrank from death, and as he was being led to the death instrument struggled violently in an attempt to break away from his guards.

With his face ashen and his body twitching nervously, Monier was half led and half dragged to the guillotine.

The bandit, whose courage had oozed completely away, shrieked and sobbed with fear as he saw the guillotine, its decapitating knife still dripping the blood of his companions.

SLEEP DISTURBING BLADDER WEAKNESS BACKACHE-RHEUMATISM, QUICKLY VANISH

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After A Few Doses Are Taken

Backache, urinary disorders and rheumatism, are caused from weak, inactive kidneys, which fail to filter out the impurities and keep the blood pure, and the only way on earth to permanently and positively cure such troubles is to remove the cause.

The new discovery, Croxone, soon relieves such conditions because it reaches the very roots of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filtering cells and glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism; heals the inflamed membranes of the bladder, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped up, lifeless kidneys so they filter and sift all the poisons from the blood, and drive it out of the system.

So sure, so positive, so quick and lasting are the results obtained from the use of Croxone, that three doses a day for a few days are often all that is required to cure the worst backache, regulate the most annoying bladder disorders, and overcome the numerous other similar conditions.

It is the most wonderful preparation ever made for the purpose. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give desired results regardless of how old you are, how long you have suffered, or what else has failed to cure you.

GIRL'S MOTHER DEMANDS DEATH FOR KID CARTER

anybody what she knew of Carter's past record? And if so, who is that person?

2.—Did "Kid Carter" want Mildred Donovan to act for him in a robbery?

3.—Did Mildred Donovan fail to agree to act as a "stall" for "Carter," and was it his anger of her refusal that caused him to strangle her, as he said he did?

It was expected today that District Attorney Higgins, with members of the State police, will interview "Carter" in his cell and put him through a series of questions to establish more facts regarding his life of crime.

Was Cocaine Fiend.

The relatives of the imprisoned man are making a strong fight to keep Jennings where he is. They demand that the prisoner be examined by a lunacy board, and assert that he is where he can do no harm, and that the move contemplated by the county authorities is without precedent.

Using the life of Kid Carter as an example of what the results of evil companionship are to a young man, the Rev. C. C. P. Hillier, of the First Methodist Church at Everett appealed to the parents of the city to keep a closer watch on the welfare of their children, who, he said, "are no better nor worse than the children of other cities."

He declared:

The recent tragedy that was committed on the very border of our city by a young fellow who boasts of never having had to do a day's work and who I am sorry to say was a former Everett boy, is a striking example that should warn the parents of our girls and of our young women to carefully scan out that they be allowed to associate with only those of honorable reputations.

Too Much Blame Placed on Adam, Says Minister

SPRINGFIELD, April 21.—Old Father Adam has lost his job as the chief blamegetter of all history. He has been exonerated by the Rev. C. C. Conner of the Second Universalist Church of Springfield as the bearer of the guilt of man. Mr. Conner says:

"It is not just to Adam. Men every where and always should shoulder their own blame. 'An idle brain is the devil's workshop.'

"The books of theology have been charging Adam with all the guilt of sin. The past does not fit the future. While heredity tends to permanency, environment tends to variation, to enlargement, to improvement. Intemperate fathers have had some who never drank to intoxicants. The list of insanity has been overcome by the human will in three generations. We need not be the conditionous sport of inherited tendencies.

AUBURN, N. Y., April 21.—Seven hundred and fifty of the 1,100 employes of the Columbian Rope Company, who have been on strike for thirty-two days, returned to work today under the terms of settlement made last week, despite efforts made by employes of the International Harvester Company to dissuade them from returning to work until the International's strike is settled.

MISS LENA VIGNEAU, Braintree girl, who weds on Wednesday, after falling in love over a piece of sweet chocolate.

Sweet Chocolate Plays Cupid Role in Braintree Romance

Miss Lena K. Vigneau of Braintree and William H. Heffernan, assistant cashier in a Boston banking house, fell in love over a piece of sweet chocolate. They will be married Wednesday evening.

Heffernan was clerk in Gerald A. Sullivan's store in Braintree when they met. Miss Vigneau tripped smilingly up to the counter and called for a package of sweet chocolate. As Heffernan handed it to her, their eyes met. Their love, they say, dated from that moment.

The wedding will take place in the rectory of St. Francis' Church, Braintree, and will be solemnized by the Rev. Andrew J. Fitzgerald. The bridesmaid will be Miss Margaret I. McLellan, and the best man John E. Heffernan. The bride is an accomplished pianist.

Since Miss Vigneau's experience, lots of Braintree girls are buying sweet chocolate.

NEW INQUIRY IN SMUGGLING FRAUDS BEGUN

That the Federal Grand Jury's investigation of the smuggling cases in Boston has only just begun with the indictments returned last week against the Shavlins and two New York dressmakers, was officially confirmed today by the summoning of other witnesses to the Federal Building.

After a lively hunt for days the secret service men located John M. Winters, Jr., a special cab driver employed by Cummings & Co., the East Boston express and forwarding firm.

Winters was called to the office of Assistant United States District Attorney William H. Garland and subjected to a long examination.

Mrs. "Honey" Melindy, the wife of the pugilist, was also called again today for further information. It was announced at the office of the District Attorney that the Grand Jury which reported its first findings in the smuggling inquiry last Thursday would convene again two weeks from today.

At 10 o'clock next Monday the first four defendants indicted in the smuggling fraud plot will be arraigned. They are Mr. and Mrs. Terrence L. Shevlin of Somerville, Miss Catherine A. Brennan and Miss Margaret Mulhall, both modistes of New York. This means that the two New York defendants will have to come to Boston on that day and furnish bonds when the Shevlins do.

It was learned today that the office of the United States District Attorney in Boston expects hourly to receive important information from New York which will lend greatly to broaden the smuggling probe.

DISMISS APPEAL OF KANSAS ROAD

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Commerce Court today dismissed the appeal of the Kansas City Southern Railroad from an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, establishing a uniform system of accounts for railroads and a classification of expenditures on betterments. The court held it had no power to interfere with the orders of the commission prescribing book-keeping methods and a classification may be reviewed only if unreasonable.

DIAMONDS---BASEBALL KIND---FOR WELLESLEY

Slam her out, Girls,
Bang it over the fence,
For we want to whang the rawhide—
Yes, we want the runs on our side;
So batter up, Girls·
Oh, this game is sure immense!
—Wellesley Bat Lyrics.

Wellesley College is going in for baseball. It's a fact. The Wellesley girls have heard the call of the big game, and, beginning next Saturday, it will be a case of "batter up!" and "play ball!" on the Wellesley greensward.

With the close of the indoor athletic season at the college, the girls have begun planning for the spring outdoor games. Baseball won't be the only sport, but it's going to be the big feature. The ball games are to be played every Saturday afternoon.

Already the girls—seniors, juniors, sophs and "fresh girls" alike—have started in their practice. They're keeping it a close secret, but they do say they're developing some feminine Ty Cobbs, Tris Speakers and Joe Woods, who are going to score a big hit on their first diamond appearance.

The makeup of the class teams is as yet a secret with the class managers. But it's more than likely the teams will be picked from among the indoor athletic stars at the college who competed in the final games last week. Some of the best athletes in each class are as follows:

Seniors—Lucille, Bachman, Rachel Burbank, Esther Balderston, Helen South, Edith Stratton, Josephine Golon, Edith Montgomery, Mildred Evans, Dorothy Wellman, Daphne Selden and Dorothy Ridgeway.

Juniors—Gladys Dowley, Evelyn Ferber, Evelyn Gough, Marion McCarroll, Virginia Moffat, Alice Mulligan, Anna Reeder, Louise Russell, Helena Stewart and Margaret Stone.

Sophomores—Justine Adams, Gertrude Folger, Ruth Lindsay, Lucretia Traver, Frances Alden, Anna Angst, Marion Brassington, Margaret Dawson, Helen Ely, Mildred Fiske, Marian Hendricks, Mildred Hunter, Ruth Powell, Helen Sheeper, Elizabeth Smart and Frances Wood.

Freshmen—Priscilla Burrows, Dorothy Case, Ines Deasy, Margaret Dodd, Olive Forstall, Marjorie Harris, Mary Johnson, Marion Metcalf, Nathalie McClosky, Emily Porter, Mary Richardson, Sara Snell, Dorothy Wing and Ruth Rand.

"PUREST MAN" TELLS WHY HE LEFT HIS WIFE

NEW YORK, April 21.—"She thought me the purest man in the world and I have tried to live up to that."

Garbed in a dainty lavender kimono, decorated with pretty yellow flowers, Harold Seaman, twenty-three, today made the above remark preliminary to giving out a full explanation of why he left his fifty-eight-year-old wife, the widow of Edward T. Coe, formerly treasurer of the American Brass Company.

"Oh, don't think I am thinking of divorce" said Harold as he used the bottom of his kimono to conceal his dainty, silk-clad ankles that persisted in peeping out. "But I have come home to Papa and Mama to talk over just what I shall do in the future. But, of course, if it does come to divorce, I assure you there will be some very extraordinary happenings, yes, indeedy.

The Fateful Meeting.

"I met Mrs Coe at Newport last August. She impressed me as being a very gentle, refined old lady. Her husband had left her $225,000, and I understand she has increased this to $1,000,000. She was nearly twice my age, but we liked one another very much.

"I went to visit her at her home in New Haven later. It was a very palatial place. While there she asked me to make my home with her and travel with her this Summer. I told her I would like to, but pointed out that it might create considerable gossip, unless we were married. So we were married last November.

"Before and after our marriage she kept telling me how pure a man I was, and I tried to be as she thought. I neither drink, smoke or chew, nor do I know how to play cards. She told me that I appealed strongly to her maternal instinct, and I told her that she appealed to my filial nature.

Suffering from Shock.

"Our agreement, at the time of our marriage, was that we live together as mother and son.

"But she didn't keep the compact and after we got back from the cruise in the West Indies, I at once left her, despite the fact that she agreed to will me $175,000. She later pleaded with me to come back, but I resisted her pleadings.

"She reminded me that it was in her power to assist me financially, but it did not cause me to alter my determination. My plans for the future are not as yet completed, and not until I recover from the shock I am suffering at present and have conferred with papa and mamma, will I know what I shall do with my life."

POLICE TO CLEAN UP OLD AMESBURY

AMESBURY, April 21.—Police Chief Edward Rowell and his police department of five patrolmen have got to "clean up" the town of Amesbury, or they will lose their jobs June 1. The Selectmen voted today that they would "emphatically" the police force if gamblers and illegal liquor sellers are not put out of business by midnight of the last day of May. The selectmen appointed a special Summer "Vice squad" of five men to help out the regular police department, consisting of Chief Rowell.

Scientific Cure for Eczema

After years of doubt medical authorities are now agreed that eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myriads of microscopic germs gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. Sloan's Liniment kills the germs. Then the skin heals itself. Nothing else does this. Nothing else is necessary. Sloan's Liniment is the most scientific and efficient remedy known for Eczema in all its forms. Pimples, Dandruff, Pimples and skin eruption of any kind. Witness its soothing power with a 50c bottle. At all druggists. Sloan's Liniment kills pain. At all good druggists.—Advertisement.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—The Red Sox wind up their series with the Athletics here today. Three games have already been played and two of them have resulted in victories for the men lead by the astute Connie Mack while Jake Stahl and his team of world's champions have managed to squeeze out a solitary win.

Joe Wood or Ray Collins will do the honors on the mound for the Red Sox today. The chances are that Stahl will rely on Wood, as he has not pitched since last Monday, when he defeated the New York Yankees by a score of 2 to 1. The Speed King is in better condition than any of the other hurlers on Stahl's staff.

The Red Sox leave here tonight for Washington, where they play Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The Red Sox will have to play a slashing game of ball if they are to hold their own with the Senators. Griffith's stars have won four straight games this season, and are sure to get a flying start in the race for the American League flag.

Joe Bush will probably oppose the Red Sox in their game with the Athletics today. He is the youngster who held the champions to three scattered hits in six and a fraction innings last week. Mack believes that he is capable of winning today's game and may decide to give him a chance on the mound.

Arena Club Plans Big Bouts Star Boxers Will Show Here

By JACK CONWAY.

THE Arena A. A., which will commence promoting boxing bouts at the Boston Arena on St. Botolph street the latter part of this month, is planning to arrange contests between the leading glove wielders in the country. With such men as Dan Lane, Mlah Murray, Alex McLean, Johnny McGann and "Trey" Lewis direct ing affairs, the new club should be a big success.

The official announcement of the opening of the club was made last Saturday. This verified the exclusive story telling about the new club which was made in the AMERICAN ten days ago.

There has not been a big box in Boston since Matty Baldwin defeated "K. O." Brown at the Pilgrim A. A. last Fall. Local ilitic lovers have been obliged to make tripe to Lawrence, Lowell, Gloucester, Manchester, N. H., and other cities which permit bouts in order to witness the ring men in action.

Such favorites as Luther McCarty, Johnny Kilbane, Leach Cross, Jack Britton and Freddy Welsh are eager to show in this city. We should therefore witness some high class bouts before the skating and hockey seasons open at the Arena next Fall.

* * *

JOE RIVERS and Tommy Murphy are both eager to meet Willie Ritchie in a bout for the lightweight champion ship of the world. Either of these men would be sure to make things interesting for the doughty Frisco youth.

Rivers has a better right to meet Ritchie than Murphy even though the New Yorker has won a decision over Wolgast. Rivers is only twenty-one years of age while Murphy is a battle scarred veteran of twenty-eight. He has been fighting for the past decade and I do not believe that he would be able to vanquish such a skilled ring man as Ritchie.

Rivers is a clever boxer and a remarkable puncher. He would have a fine chance of defeating Ritchie. Such a contest would be a great drawing card on the Coast as both Ritchie and Rivers are natives of California.

* * *

MURPHY has experienced a great deal of success in twenty round bouts on the coast. He was considered a back number two years ago when he was knocked out in one round by "K. O." Brown but he "came back" unlike hundreds of other boxers who have tried to regain their former laurels after being defeated. Tommy is a game, rugged fellow and will cause trouble for many an aspirant for ring honors before he is forced to lay the padded gloves on the shelf for all time.

* * *

BILLY NIXON of Cambridge and Ray Wood of Fall River are scheduled to meet at Lewiston, Me., Wednesday night. The bout should be crowded with action, as both men are noted for their ability to give and take hard punches. Nixon has been working out at a local gymnasium for the past three weeks and is in good condition for the match. Wood is fighting at a fast pace just now, as he proved when he held Battling Nelson to a draw at New Bedford last Saturday.

* * *

AN amateur boxing tournament will be conducted at the Riverside Boat Club Wednesday night. Bouts will be held at 108, 125 and 140 pounds. There will also be two special contests. The feature whirl will be between Tommy Reagan, national and A. A. U. featherweight champion, and Patsy Green of Cambridge. Both boys are fast and shifty boxers and should give a good account of themselves.

TAPS ARE SOUNDED FOR WILDCAT WOLGAST

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—Taps for Wildcat Wolgast. That is as a champion.

As a good, useful selling plater, he might continue for a while in the fighting game if he wished. If he is wise, though, and is as well endowed with the world's goods as he says, he will retire. Better than to gradually join the "Sarragasso Sea" of pugilism as Battling Nelson has done.

Wolgast was thoroughly vanquished by "Harlem Tommy" Murphy in their fight at Coffroth's. It took Murphy the full twenty rounds to gain the decision, but when the last blow was struck and the last gong had clanged there was never a doubt as to which way Referee Jim Griffin would rule.

This tells the second, sober-thought story of Ad Wolgast's downfall. It was nip and tuck, touch and go for 17 rounds. During all that time the lightweight fought with the spirit of a couple of game roosters. Murphy, maybe, was the more persistent of the two. He scored the greater number of punches, but when Wolgast landed there was more zip and sting to his delivery. This applies particularly to the trade of body blows.

One opponent, delivered in the eighteenth, changed the aspect of the whole affair. Needless to say, Murphy sped it, but whether it was a left or a right, the writer, for one, would not undertake to say.

At the time, the lads were leaning breast to breast, and Murphy's fast flying gloves were as nebulous in appearance as the paddles of an electric fan in action. The combined tilting of Wolgast's head testified to the accuracy of Murphy's blows, but at close range it was not idle. He hammered diligently at the Harlem boxer's ribs, but with the diminished force that comes from a cramped position.

They parted suddenly from a spasm of exceedingly rapid fighting and Wolgast's lower lip was a glistening smear of red. One of the Murphy punches had smashed the lower lip into contact with the teeth, and a small artery was severed. Wolgast was in sore straits, but he battled on with Spartan fortitude, the while the Murphyites on the packed benches bellowed gleefully over the change in the look of things.

Murphy's Chance Comes.

Wolgast, who for several rounds, had tried to land a knockout right, and had tried weakly and bunglingly, by the way, redoubled his efforts to stem the tide with one felt punch. But he was too tired and wild of aim and it was no trick for Murphy to snap back from the Michigander's wild assaults and carry the battle to the attack.

In the last round of all, Wolgast fought frantically. He swung and tumbled into clinches and while at close quarters he put his remaining strength into short arm blows which had not their power to disturb.

And right here Murphy gave evidence of the possession of a clear head. He held and shouldered Wolgast and just allowed Wolgast to fight himself out. Occasionally Tommy freed his arms and pecked at Wolgast's damaged face, but it was not until there was a bare minute of fighting time remaining that he cut loose determinedly.

Crowded Him Into a Corner.

He crowded Wolgast into a corner—wedged him there in fact—and was raining blows on the ex-champion's distorted mouth when Timekeeper George Harting yanked the string which sent hammer against metal disc and ended the bout.

Referee Griffin had to pull the belligerents out of the ring tangle and separate them before he could lay hands on Murphy's sodden right glove. The Murphy right was lodged aloft and Wolgast marched disconsolately toward his corner.

By L. R. MURDOCH.

The best baseball news in Boston today is that the Giants are going away tonight. We don't care particularly where they go, but the sooner the better. The National League schedule was choked up at this time with five games between the Giants and Pilgrims in Boston, instead of the customary four. There are two ways of looking at that catastrophe. The optimistic way is to rejoice that those five defeats will be out of the way early in the season. You know they might have prolonged the agony by serving it to us in two bunches instead of one.

The Dodgers will come over from Brooklyn to help entertain us tomorrow and the succeeding three days. Charley Ebbetts' men, who have been neighbors of ours in the National League basement for most seasons past, are being touted as rising young citizens this year.

We will bid them adieu as they begin their upward climb, or we will put the kibosh on that kind of touting, according as they play with George Stallings' young men this week.

Up to the time of writing, all Mr. Stallings' fledglings have had to do is tussle with the Giants, which is rather a tough proposition to put up to real young players looking for a football in "big" company. They will be happy to be permitted to take on somebody of their size, beginning tomorrow. For the past eleven days—ever since the season started, in fact, all the youngsters have heard or seen is Giants—Giants—Giants! Tonight they can go to bed and sleep in peace.

After the Dodgers come the Phillies—more peace.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

Plain Facts about Champagne

Can the customs officers impart life, bouquet, flavor to a wine? Can a transatlantic steamship freight department improve the purity and deliciousness of a champagne? If so, by all means pay $2.00 for your champagne—of which Uncle Sam gets 60c for duty and a steamship company 40c for freight. But if not—buy Cook's Imperial and get the best of champagnes, all of whose cost goes into quality.

HARRY SMITH'S DEFEAT CAUSED BY FAST PACE

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

When Harry Smith attempted to lead all the way in Saturday's Marathon, he had in mind the record set up by Mike Ryan, the Irish-American distance champion, who covered the course faster than any other athlete when he won the event last year.

Smith is one of the greatest ten-mile runners in this country. He can also run a Marathon and run it with the best and fastest men in this country. At the conclusion of last Saturday's race he said that he did not run too fast during the first part of the distance, even though he was unable to withstand the sprint of the first and second place winners.

Smith Got Fast Pace.

It is impossible to see what plan the New Yorker had in mind when he started that terrible pace that eventually found him at Wellesley in the fastest time on record. It is the same story every year. The man who sets the pace always gets defeated.

Since his return from Sweden the Bronx Church House athlete has won twenty-six events and three of these have been in championship races. In winning the American ten-mile championship he had to defeat such men as Kramer and Scott and many other athletes of international fame.

Since that memorable race which surprised the critics by his grand work, he has competed against Kolehmainen and Kramer many times at their own distance of two miles. There is not an athlete in America, with the possible exception of Kolehmainen, who can be classed as such a premier all-round long distance runner as Smith, who on his nerve alone covered the last seven miles of the twenty-five-mile grind from Ashland to Boston.

Ready to Compete Again.

At the conclusion of the race, when the athletes were receiving their prizes, Smith was in the best condition of the entire list of men who finished. He showed absolutely no effects from his race and remarked that he would be able to compete in another race in a few days. He claimed that if he had had time to prepare himself he would undoubtedly have made a better showing in the B. A. A. classic. He will soon start training for a modified Marathon race in New York.

B. C. Baseball Nine Has Three Games for This Week

The Boston College nine will play three games this week. The first contest will be played today with the St. Michael's team, Colby will be played Friday, and on Saturday the postponed game with Rhode Island State will be played off at Kingston, R. I.

The first two battles are home games and arrangements are under way to play at least one of them at Fenway Park. Coach Scanlon will have a chance to size up all three of his varsity twirlers and will probably send Hallorah after the St. Michael's game, Whalley after the Colby game and then Woods will be ready for the Rhode Island State clash.

The team has been rather handicapped by the weather. It has been unable to use the Locust street grounds because of the poor condition of the grounds.

IS COBB WORTH $15,000 TO BASEBALL?

IF DETROIT CAN'T AFFORD IT SOME OTHER CITIES CAN

By RILEY

Dropping all the perishage that infests both sides of the Ty Cobb argument, there are only two practical questions that concern us outsiders:

1. Is the Gem of Georgia worth $15,000 a year to the Detroit Baseball Club?

2. If Cobb is not worth $15,000 a year to Detroit, is it fair to Cobb or to the "fans" to prevent him from playing in some other city where he may be worth $15,000?

There is a bunch of other questions hanging upon the above—such as "the future of organized baseball," the hazardous returns on baseball investments, the manner in which Cobb and Navin handled their respective sides of the argument, etc.—but those questions are of no real practical concern to the public. You can't get the "fans" het up about any of these side arguments. The meat of it, to them, is served up above in two chunks.

What the "Fans" Think of It.

He's a sample: The writer met a rich old "fan" at South End Park—the old-fashioned vested interest: "bug," who is a foe to the organization of employes for any purpose whatever. He looked like the right kind of a man to approach for an anti-Cobb argument. This is what he said:

An outrage—an outrage, sir! I go to the ball game every pleasant afternoon. It's my recreation. I pay a good dollar almost every day to see baseball. There are thousands and thousands more like me. We are entitled to the best baseball there is, in return for our money. It is up to those fellows (the magnates) to give us the best there is. They can afford it. Why, look at that crowd! (He pointed to 7,000 "fans.") They paid about $4,000 to see this game. If they gave Ty Cobb $15,000 a year it would amount to about $100 a game.

If we pay $4,000 to see a ball game—which is a moderate day at most big parks—$100 a game is little enough to pay a player who gives us the run for our money we get from Cobb. That is, if they can't get Cobb for less.

I know some of the baseball sallies are mighty good money for the time spent in the game. But what's that to me? I only pay five times as much to see open as to see a ball game, and they think nothing of paying from $1,000 to $3,000 a performance to an artist who is as great a star in opera as Cobb is in baseball. No, sir! We want what we pay for. It's a shame to keep a fellow like Cobb from playing baseball.

On the other hand, a working man who holds just the opposite economic views was tackled. He opined:

Those baseball players are the worst kind of victims of wage slavery. They have to toe the mark for their employers, and take what the boss gives them, or quit playing altogether. It's slavery. They're bought and sold like so many cattle.

I know they get good money for the time they spend and the amount of actual work they do. But it's the principle of the thing that's at stake—the right to sell your labor where and when you please, and for what you can get.

It's the skill with which they do it that gets them the good salaries.

Only a few at the top, in baseball, comparatively, are good enough to get the good jobs with the best paying clubs. And they only last a few years.

Yes, $15,000 a year—or $100 a game—is a lot of money for a fellow who gives up only four hours a day six months in a year to the game. But what of it? How about the doctor whose skill gets him $1,000 for an operation that takes but fifteen minutes? He didn't spend any more time learning how to perform that operation than the baseball player did in learning how to play the game skilfully enough to become a big league star. And he lasts longer than the star.

And if it weren't for fellows like Cobb you wouldn't see those jammed grandstands, and the magnates wouldn't be taking fortunes in at the gates. The players are all there is to the game, and they're entitled to a fair share of the profits and to work for whom they please.

The Middle-of-the-Road "Fan."

Then there is the half-way-between "fan"—the fellow who isn't worried one way or the other about other people's business or abstract economic problems. Here's what one of them said:

What's it to me? If Cobb pulls the money in at the gate they ought to pay him for it, oughtn't they? I'm blamed sure nobody goes to see ball games because so-and-so happens to own the team. No, they go to see rousing baseball—the kind that keeps you excited.

If Detroit can't make enough off Cobb to afford to pay him $15,000 a year, and some other city can, let him go to the other city. If none of the magnates can afford to pay such a salary and make a good profit, then let 'em pay him less, and if he isn't satisfied with that, let him go to—well, wherever he prefers to go. That's all I care about it.

Barring influences "higher up," it is safe to say that there are at least four clubs, and probably more, that would be glad of the opportunity to hire Ty Cobb at $15,000 a year—regardless of what the owners of these clubs might say publicly on the question at this time. Those clubs are:

Boston Americans.
Chicago Americans.
New York Nationals.
New York Americans.

It is likely that two or three others would slip in a bid at those figures if Cobb were a "free agent."

Magnates Want the Cobbs.

A magnate heavily interested in one of these clubs was asked what he thought of the Cobb proposition, and whether he would like to engage Cobb. He declared, emphatically:

Would I? Well, you give me a chance and see. Would Cobb make trouble for me and my team by his erratic ways and his influence on the team? I don't care. I'd take a long chance on that. But whether Cobb gets $15,000 a year is a question between him and the Detroit club, solely, as it stands.

It is a good guess that any one of the clubs that could and would take Cobb at a record salary would be willing to give Detroit in exchange enough valuable players to materially strengthen Jennings' ball team. But the Detroit magnates are loth to sell or trade Cobb for fear of the effect it would have on the Detroit baseball public.

What the "Fans" Want.

It is a good guess that while most "fans" appreciate the benefits of baseball so organized as to assure good contests, they are willing to let the magnates wrestle with that feature of it. About the only practical concern most of them have in the game is, first, they want the best baseball that can be produced, played by the best players obtainable, and, second, they want the magnates to pay whatever they have to, in order to give them that kind of sport.

Concerning Cobb in particular, most of them seem to be willing to admit that whether Navin can afford to pay Cobb $15,000 is a question for Navin to decide, but if he can't, then Cobb ought to be allowed to play in some city that CAN afford to pay him that sum.

Cobb is certainly a good enough drawing card to return a big profit on $15,000 a year in several cities, his personal eccentricities to the contrary notwithstanding. And the "fans" want to see all the Cobbs that can be produced right out there on the diamond. You can't bring 'em on fast enough to suit the baseball "bugs."

HOW PIRATES WON THEIR NICKNAME

The Pittsburgh team, commonly called the Pirates, got that name as the result of the kidnapping of Louis Bierbauer, a star second baseman, from the Philadelphia Athletics away back in 1888 or 1889. At that time there was a working agreement between the National League and the old American Association by which neither organization was permitted to reserve more than fifteen players at the close of a season.

The owners of the Athletics in the American Association desired to keep sixteen of their men, but as only fifteen could be legally reserved the only way open was to leave one name off of the list and take a chance on no other club picking up the player. Accordingly the Athletic management failed to name Bierbauer in its reserve list, hoping the omission would be overlooked. But a friend of the Pittsburgh club noted that Bierbauer's name was missing and as Louis was a much-sought player, the friend told Horace Phillips, manager of the Pittsburgh club. Phillips proceeded to Erie, Pa., where Louis passed the Winter months at his home. His trip was successful.

A CELEBRATED NOVEL BY FLORENCE WARDEN

PART II

NEXT day, which was Saturday, Mr. Laurance knew very little he himself noticed the store-room and Mr. Rayner's study had been found, no trace of Gordon, beyond a pair of handcuffs in the middle of the store-room on top of a mermaid of biscuit tins and pickle jars, with a sheet of paper saying that the late lessee begged to return them with thanks to the police who might be interested in making them stay longer on the estate of a humble lessee than their comfort was worth. F. Gordon.

It was about twelve o'clock when I left my lodgings, and I had made my way as far as the corridor below when I became aware of an unusual commotion on the ground floor, doors being opened and shut, the rubbing of a match, excited whisperings between Jane and the cook and then the heavy tramp, tramp along the hall and along the passage to Mr. Rayner's study.

I went to the top of the back staircase, descended a few steps and looked over. The gardner and Sam were carrying between them a door, on which something was lying covered by a sheet. The cook opened the study door and they took it in. A horrible dread filled my mind and kept me powerless for a few minutes. Then I ran along the corridor down the front staircase and met little Haidee with an expression of awe on her childish face.

"Oh, Miss Christie," she whispered, clutching my arm in terror, "they've found papa!"

The End of Rayner

Jane ran forward and caught the as I tottered in the child's grasp. Before I had recovered sufficiently to go to Mrs. Rayner in the drawing room Laurance and Mrs. Manners arrived, having heard the ghastly news already. They took us over to the vicarage at once, and I never entered the Alders again.

In the evening Laurance told me all about the discovery. The gardener, who had done little work for the past few days beyond keeping the gate locked and driving away with a whip the boys who would swarm over when they got a chance, "just to have a look at the place," had been attracted that morning by the shrill cries of Mouse, who, now more neglected than ever, spent all day in the garden in spite of the rain.

He ran to the pond, where she was nearly always to be found, and whence her cries came, fearing she had fallen in. But he found her standing in the mud on the edge of it screaming, "Come out! come out!" and clutching with a stick at the object in the water. It was the body of her father, entangled in the reeds.

The downtrodden grasses and rushes at the corner of the pond nearest to the stile which joined the path through the field beyond told a story of how he must have missed his way coming through the dense fog of Wednesday night, on his way back from the lady to the Alders, slipped into the pond, being drowned out there in the fog and darkness, while his dog Nap, hearing his cry for help, had tried in vain, by howling and barking, to draw attention to his master's need.

I heard next day that two passengers, booked in the name of "Mr. and Mrs. Ford," and actually been taken by him on board a ship which left Liverpool for New York on the very Thursday when we were to have started on our journey "to Monaco." The tickets were found upon him, and also the necklace, which proved to be a valuable ornament of ruby lace which belonged to Mr. Cunningham. A cab driver stepped forward my seen on the night of his death, and which I had flung upon the floor. Those were the only ones of all the stolen jewels which were ever recovered, with the exception of the diamond pendant, which I had sent back to its owner, Lord Ilsiston.

Gordon Heard From

Upon the house being searched, the candle which had fallen from my hands when I first went into the cellar under the storeroom was found under the stagnant water there, and also the brown portmanteau, which was identified as one belonging to Sir Jonas Mills; but the jewels, with the exception of a stray drop from an earring, had disappeared. I heard about Gordon, as he told me I would, through Mr. Carruthers, who, long before the impression these events had made died away, received a letter dated New York, in which Gordon, in a very respectful manner, apologized for the inconvenience his sudden disappearance might have caused his master.

Mr. Carruthers would find that the bills he had commissioned him to settle in Bloemfontein on that unfortunate Wednesday afternoon had been paid, and he begged to forward him the receipt; he had also left the silver-mounted clasp to be repaired at Bell's and the hunting stock at Marsden.

He had given up service for the present and taken to a different profession, as he felt, if he was not taking a liberty in saying so, that it would be impossible for him to find in America a master who gave him in all respects so much satisfaction as Mr. Carruthers had done.

Nothing more had ever been heard of Mr. Gordon under that name; but some three years later a representative in the United States Congress, who was described as a rich West India merchant, made a great sensation by a very impressive speech upon some financial question; a rough sketch of him in a New York illustrated paper fell into the hands of Mr. Carruthers, who sent it to Laurance, and under the grimly cut mustache and hair parted very much on one side, we fancied we recognized something like the discut features and the bland expression of our old friend Gordon.

Happily Married

I was happily married to Laurance before the trial of poor Tom Parkes and of the subordinate who had been caught removing the plate from the hall. I had to give evidence, and I was so much distressed at having to do so that Tom, good-natured to the last, called out:

"Don't take on so, Lor' bless you, you can't say any worse than they know, it's only a matter of form."

He took a stolid sort of glory in his iniquities, pleaded "guilty" to the charge brought against him in the hall, as active part in all three robberies, and exulted especially in the neatness of the execution of the robbery in Denham Court, where the various articles stolen were being quietly abstracted one by one at different times by Gordon for two or three days before the Tuesday, when they were finally carried off by Mr. Rayner and taken by him and Tom to the Alders, where Sarah had received them as I had seen.

As to what had become of the jewels afterward Tom professed himself as innocent as a child; but after, whether this was true or not, nobody believed him, he was sentenced to fourteen years' penal servitude, he did not bear the sentence with half so much concern as I.

Poor Mrs. Rayner never entirely shook off the gloomy cloud which had grown around her during those long years of her subservile marriage. Khadieneraly Sir Jonas Mills was among the very first to come forward and help her; and, by his generous assistance and that of other friends, she went abroad, taking Haidee with her, and Jane, who proved the most devoted servant and friend.

Laurance and I, who were married before she left England, undertook the care of poor little savage Mouna, who had grown into almost as nice a child as her sister. And now I have one of my own, too.

THE END.

What the Newly Wed Should Know

FIRST—LEARN TO COOK By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

LEARN to cook, as a matter of honesty, if for no other reason.

According to Miss Wilhelmina Clement, past mistress in the culinary art, the wife who can't cook or superintend the housekeeping takes her husband's pay envelope on false pretenses.

She does not know her business.

Miss Clement has been teaching brides their business for some time, and in her immaculately clean kitchen, from which a class of bride pupils had just departed, she explained why a knowledge of cooking was one of the most important assets which a young woman brings to the matrimonial partnership.

Miss Clement is of Dutch descent and is "Mrs." in private life. In her white frock and pretty Dutch cap she is good to look at.

Reciprocity Expected

"When a couple marry," said Miss Clement, "the girl expects her husband to hand her over most of his salary, and he, in turn, expects that her management of that money will make it go twice as far as it did before their marriage.

"It's his business to earn the money. It's hers to spend it wisely. One part is as important as the other.

"Not that I would feel she had been cheated if she found after marriage that he was incapable of earning the bread and butter, and he has a right to feel that he has been defrauded if she doesn't know how to cook the food that his money buys.

"The foundation of all home life is the kitchen. People live in hotels and boarding houses, but these are not called 'home.'

"A home is a place where the hearth fire burns for you and yours alone, even if the hearth fire is a gas range.

Don't Be a Cheat

"The girl who marries for a home and does not know her part of the business of making that home is cheating. She cannot know her business unless she knows how to cook.

"In very well-to-do homes the wife may not want to do the cooking personally, but unless she knows something about cooking, she cannot direct her helper or understand whether or not her family is getting proper nourishment.

"Correct feeding is becoming a science, and we are all awakening to the fact that it is as important to combine food properly for the adult as it is for the baby.

"Men who are well fed, properly nourished, are less inclined to drink. It's poor cooking as much as anything that sends men to the saloons.

"No woman need think that she is too intellectual to bother with cooking. Cooking is a science as well as an art, and one can go on learning forever.

"The bride who has a good foundation of culinary knowledge and takes an interest in cooking will find no end of possibilities to it.

"Right in her own kitchen she can join the great movement to reduce the high cost of living. She can use up every scrap of left-over material. And let me tell you that it is the clever cook alone who can make left-over food tasty and who never wastes anything.

"It is the bride's business to insist on standard goods, not taking poorer substitutes. In the end it always pays to get the best materials and cut down in some other way—and having so many different dishes perhaps.

"The smaller the income the more intelligence it takes on the part of the bride to manage her share of the domestic partnership, and the more she needs to study and plan her daily bill of fares.

"Every girl who is going to be married should take a course of cooking lessons unless a very wise mother has taught her already. Unfortunately such mothers are rare nowadays. If she already knows how to cook ordinarily well she ought to go on learning and trying new dishes by herself.

"In the average home there is an appalling lack of variety in the bill of fare, and that is why men, especially, are so glad to get a meal at a good restaurant. A man's stomach craves variety, and the hard working man is certainly entitled to a good meal properly balanced in food values and dainty service.

"A man comes home after a hard day's work and sees the same old things served on a soiled cloth. Sometimes he sees delicatessen food hastily bought just before dinner. I think he has a right to complain, and generally he does. If he is easy going he says nothing, but after a while he grows 'grouchy.'

"There are more grouches caused by bad cooking than by bad luck.

"Don't be satisfied if you can do plain home cooking. The man of today, and his wife and children, too, have acquired a taste for foreign dishes, and that is what the restaurants thrive on. You can learn to make chop suey or Italian spaghetti yourself. They are not mysteries, but no one can learn them unless they are willing to take time and thought and pains.

"The health and comfort of the family depend very largely on the wife's knowledge of cooking. If she does not know her business the matrimonial venture will not be the success she might have made it."

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by any of the Riker-Jaynes drug stores under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Cassidy Reviews Progress of Pure Food Legislation.

Seven pure food bills have been reported upon by the Committee on Public Health, and are progressing through the Legislature. Mr. Cassidy today recites something of the progress that has been made by food legislation in the course of his three months' stay in Boston.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The people of Massachusetts have a right to be proud of the progressive spirit of some of their legislators. These legislators who have been named by me before this and will be named again, have already made a record of pure food legislation.

This is what has been accomplished:

1—A bill forbidding the sale of candy containing deleterious mineral ingredients has been passed and has become law.

2—A bill forbidding the fraudulent adulteration of butter by incorporating into it over 16 per cent. water, needs only the Governor's signature to become law.

3—A bill providing that cold storage eggs, when sold, must be marked on the carton or the basket in which they are displayed, "cold storage eggs," has been passed to be engrossed by both the House and Senate and needs only to be enacted by both branches before going to the Governor for his signature.

Both this and the butter bill are excellent, and they are bills to which there can be no legitimate opposition. The butter bill only checks fraud, and this egg bill simply prevents the sale of storage as fresh.

There is another egg bill yet to be reported by the committee. This second bill is aimed at the traffic in rotten eggs for food. Saturday I told how the Pennsylvania Legislature has passed a bill requiring all rots and spots to be denatured before they leave the candling room, and I showed how this law will effectually end the rotten egg traffic.

Drafted Pennsylvania Law.

That Pennsylvania law, by the way, I drafted. I presented it to the Legislature two years ago, and Commissioner Foust killed it. Later Commissioner Foust discarded me from the department. Then Governor Tener, alarmed at the number of casualties he made by subscribing my discharge, conspired with Foust to rehabilitate themselves by passing this bill which I had introduced. Like the wolf that donned a sheep's wool, Foust and Tener are trying to pose as pure food advocates. Their sanction of my bill is an interesting commentary on the lying charges of graft and crookedness, which are being circulated against me by enemies of food purity in Boston.

4—An ice cream bill has been reported by the Committee on Public Health and is in a fair way to passing through the House. The bill provides for a 5 per cent. butter fat standard and forbids the use of synthetic fevers, so that it will be a great advance over the present ineffectual law. The bill protected was a compromise between a bill I had introduced, and the contentions of the ice cream men. Dr. Sharp of the committee drafted this ice cream bill.

5—The Committee on Public Health has also reported my bill forbidding the use of any coloring matter in sausage, and forbidding the practice of increasing the weight of the sausage by mixing it with cereal cooked in water. The investigations the government standard of 2 per cent. cereal and 3 per cent. water. I predict that many a sausage man now using cereal will quit when he finds he cannot soak half cereal in 20 or 30 per cent. water—and sell that water to the customer at fifteen cents a pint.

Strikes Out Joker.

6—The committee has likewise reported favorably a bill striking the word "knowingly" out of the law relative to the sale of putrid, decayed or unwholesome food. The present law exempts a rascally dealer from punishment if he declares he didn't KNOW he was selling rotten meat or rotten fruit. The bill reported by the committee will put a direct end to scores of foodstuffs.

YOU MUST MAKE IT YOUR BUSINESS TO KNOW whether the food you sell is good or bad.

The bill provides that a jail sentence may be imposed upon the person selling unwholesome food of this kind. It is these jail sentences which really put a "bite" into food laws. The food doper doesn't fear a fine, but he does fear publicity, and he does fear jail.

The above bill was reported on two identical bills, one introduced by Joseph L. Johnson, the wide awake and public spirited inspector of Cambridge food stuffs, and the other introduced by me.

7—The committee has reported unfavorably on a bill relative to the sale of calves under four weeks old. There may be an attempt to override the committee's unfavorable report on this bill, when it come up for action in the House.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

THIS morning Pa had his breakfast erly, at the same time I always have my breakfast to go to school. The reason Pa had his breakfast so erly was because he didnt go to the banquet last nite which was gave by the Bowling Club of which Pa is a member. He didn't go because he sed he was going and Ma said he wasent. I cud see that Pa was kinda cross while he was reading his morning paper, because Pa never likes to get up erly.

Pa, I sed to him, I wish you would read me sum of the sporting news before I go to school. I don't get a chanst to see any papers at school & you always take the paper away with you when you go to the offis. Read me something about Joe Wood and Buck O'Brien, I sed to Pa, & see if there is anything about Clark Griffith & his Washington Club, because I want to see them win the pennant in the American Leeg.

Please don't bother me Bobbie, sed Pa. I am reading the market news and I don't want to be disturbed by any fool talk beout baseball. I suppose, Pa sed, that all your mother & me will hear all summer is baseball, baseball. I never could see anything to that game Pa sed.

You wunt have changed a hole lot since last season, Ma sed, wen the Red Sox was at home you hardly ever got home in time for anything but a cold dinner. O, I used to go most in a while, Pa sed, but I have made up my mind that I am thru bothering about the Grate Nachinal Gains. I see that there is danger of moar trubbel in the Balcans sed Ma, & that another of them crazy eastern Princes has run off with a girl that used to play in burlesque in the United States.

Doesnt it say anything there about how fast Walter Johnson is pitching this season, I asked Pa?

I toald you onst not to bother me Ia sed, now you hurry up & git yure breakfast finished and go to skule. If you ast me another question about baseball I am going to use the pan of my hand for a bat. Pa sed, and preetend that you are a baseball pureself.

So I finished my breakfast & on the way to the skule bous I bought a morning paper. I thet that if I got to skule erly, I cud git the prin-ciple to reed me something about how the players was gitting along at the beginning of the season.

The prin-ciple was there wen I got thare & I gave him the paper and ast him if he would piess reed me some news on the sporting page. What do you want me to reed the sporting page for, the prin-ciple ast me. I want to know if Joe Wood's wing is sirlgnt, I told him. Joe Wood's what? said the prin-ciple. His wing, I sed, his whip, I mean his arm. I am sure I am not in-ter-ested in the person you speek of, sed the prin-ciple, and becsides I think it would look a lot beeter for a liddel boy like you to come to skule with his skule books under his arm than to walk in her and show me a yul-ger sporting page.

There was never a great man, the prin-ciple sed, that started erly in life reading sporting pages. Do you suppose, he sed to me, that Abraham Lincoln would walk twelve miles to buy a newspaper with a sporting paig in it? No, he sed, when he walked twelve miles for sumthing to read, it was always a law book or the work of some grate master that he brought home with him.

I am sur-prised and dis-apoint-ed in you, Bobbie, he sed, give me that paper and go to your seat. Study yure jografy lesson, he sed, so you wont tell aggen today the way you did yesterday that Brasil was the capitol of Nue Jersy.

So I went to my seet and I studied my jografy until the rest of the skol calm, but I noticed that wile I was studing the prin-ciple was all the time reeding the paper I had brot him & I was almost sure that it was the sporting page he was looking at.

All of the kids made mis-takes in their lessons all the fooremoon. I gess they was all thinking about baseball same as me, beekaus wen the teecher asked Reddy Blake who was the greatest living Amarikan outside of Roosevelt Reddy sed Jake Stahl, and wen the teecher asked the boy next to him who was the greatest Living Amarikan he sed George Stallings.

The teecher dident know what to think & the prin-ciple got awful mean and gave all of us a skoalding. He sed he dident have any little boys, but if he did have he hoped they would not grow up to be silly & go crasy over baseball.

After skule was over some of us kids was going hoam & we heard two men quarling about baseball. We cud heer them a block.

Frank Chance is going to show up McGraw in New York this yeer, sed one of the men.

You are crazy, plum crazy, sed the other man. McGraw is going to have another penant-winning team & the Yankies will be lucksy if they finish in the 1st divishun.

I doant care to talk to a lunytick, sed the 1st man. Neether do I, sed the other man. Good nite!

Wen we got clost to the 2 men we seen who they was.

One of the men was the prin-ciple of the skule.

The other man was Pa.

"APRIL" Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner By Nell Brinkley

April comes down the steps of the world, with her chapeau filled over one tender black eye. ("One eye must be in hiding," says insolent Paree.) Her gown is fearfully and wonderfully clutched up here—and there. At every step the cloth about her feet gasps silkily and draws back from four or five inches of gossamer stocking. The buckles on her insteps twinkle and mock like a pair of wicked eyes. With her come the clouds of Spring birds from the South; soft, cream-puff clouds and fruit-tree blossoms. Beside her way lusty Pan pipes away a thrilling, honey-sweet chanson. And the baby lamb lounges at his woolly, youthful ease! April comes down the steps of the world!

Two Boys and a Cigarette

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

TWO bright little boys named Harry and Will
Were just the same size and the same age, until
One day in their travels it chanced that they met
A queer little creature, surnamed Cigarette.
This queer little creature made friends with the boys,
And told them a story of masculine joys
He held for their sharing. "I tell you," quoth he,
"The way to be manly and big is through me."
Will listened and yielded, but Harry held out,
"I think your assertions are open to doubt,"
He said. "And, besides, I'm afraid I'd be sick."
"Afraid! echoed Will. "Oh, you cowardly stick!
"Well, I'm not afraid: look where!" as he spoke.
He blew out a halo of Cigarette smoke.
Five years from that meeting I saw them again.
The time had arrived when they both should be men,
But strangely enough, although Harry boy stood
As tall and as strong as a tree in the wood,
Poor Will seemed a dwarf; sunken eyes, hollow cheek,
Stooped shoulders proclaimed him unmanly and weak
With thumb and forefinger he listlessly rolled
A Cigarette, smoothing each wrinkle and fold,
And the smoke that he puffed from his lips, I declare,
Took the form of a demon and grinned from the air.
And it said, "See that wreck of a man that I made
Of the boastful young fellow who wasn't afraid."

ONE FOR THE COLLEEN

BRIDGET had just gone over from Ireland, and she had started to work for a large firm in Bradford, England. One of the girls who was noted for being unfamiliar with soap was very aggressive to the young colleen. She had been teasing her one dinner-hour when a group of girls was watching. The repartee match waxed warm, the Yorkshire lass losing heavily. The finishing touch came when Bridget, suddenly turning to one of the girls, said:

"What's this one's name?" pointing to her rival.

"Lilly," was the answer.

"What!" said Bridget, ironically, "Judging by her dirty face, I've been after taking her for a spud—never mind a lily."

See how easy it is to make this delicious bisque from Campbell's Tomato Soup:

Just heat the contents of the can—first adding a small pinch of baking-soda.

Heat separately a canful of milk—Rinse the can to measure by. And add a little cream if you like.

When ready to serve, mix the milk and soup together and have them thoroughly hot. But do not let them boil.

There you have as wholesome and tasty a soup as ever was served. Try it for dinner today.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

WAIT A WHILE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young man and have got company much with a young lady for the last five years. Recently, when calling at her house as acted very indifferent. I would like to have my letters and pictures returned. Would it be proper for me to request her to return them upon returning all I have received from her?
A READER.

YOU have been close friends for five years and would end it all because she seemed indifferent?

Your rendiness to accept dismissal is epicious. Do you want your friendship to terminate? Perhaps she was cool because you have been content with monopolizing her for five years and have said nothing about an engagement. Think it over.

SHE IS UNREASONABLE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am nineteen and am deeply in love with a young lady one year younger. When I call at her home I am detained until a very late hour, which interferes with my sleep, and the consequence is that I am frequently late in arriving at the office. I spoke to her of this, but she said that if I loved her as much as I say I do I would not mind staying late. Would you advise me to give her up on this account?
VICTOR C.

SHE is so unreasonable that if you lost your position because of your late hours she would show you no sympathy, nor in any way consider herself in fault. Tell her you can stay only so late; and stick to that resolution. I am sure she will agree rather than give you up.

IF YOU LOVE HIM, YES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am nineteen, and at the beginning of the season was introduced to a young man who thought quite a good deal of me, but as time went on we had a misunderstanding, and parted. Now he is begining to correspond again. Do you think it would be worth while to renew our friendship?
M. B.

THAT depends entirely on your sentiments regarding him. If you like him and can see where the friendship is worth while to you, you will decide that the misunderstanding is too trivial to keep up a party.

SHE IS RIGHT.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young man of eighteen, keeping company with a young woman two years my senior. We are infatuated with each other. But my mother does not approve of it for the simple reason that I am too young to keep company with anyone as yet.
C. T. H.

A BOY of eighteen is too young to play with love. Give up this nonsense and "devote more time to your work. If she is the girl for you this is not the time, and both you and she will improve in the waiting.

HER MANNER WILL SHOW IT.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young man, eighteen years of age, and like very much a girl one-half year my junior. I see her very often. I do not know whether she likes me or not, but would like to find out.
J. G. G. G.

THAT is easy to learn, as girls are not clever in concealing their likes or dislikes. But don't make the effort. You are both too young.

LATEST FROM TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Stock markets opened dull and lacking in feature. There was a disposition on the part of traders to be cautious pending developments. Price changes were narrow as a rule and did not indicate pronounced sentiment of any kind.

Directors of the North Lake Mining Co. have called an assessment of $1 a share, payable May 10 to stock of record May 17. At the meeting of the board the management of the company was reorganized by the election of these officers: Richard M. Edwards, president; Albert L. Wyman, secretary; Henry Truman, treasurer; Arthur C. Paine, president pro tem; Irving J. Sturgis, secretary and treasurer pro tem.

At the end of the first hour in the Boston market, Boston & Maine was up ¼, and Boston Elevated ⅝. As in New York prices were irregular.

Stocks Open Irregular in New York.

When the New York market opened prices were irregular. Southern Pacific was one of the prominent features, opening at 106½, a gain of ⅜ over Saturday's final. Reading, which sold ex-dividend, opened at 161, a loss of 1-16 at the last closing. Within an hour it was selling at 162 for a gain of almost a point. Canadian Pacific was strong, following its London lead and advanced a point. Lister is reported as having his usual bear campaign estimated U. S. B. & O. ⅛, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅛, Lehigh Valley ⅛, New York Central ⅛, and Pennsylvania ⅛. Steel common gained ⅛ on the first sale, but afterwards shaded. Utah Copper and Westinghouse also made fractional gains.

The Curb was dull.

Associates in London were quiet on above New York parity. There were moderate purchases of Canadian Pacific in London.

No Minnesota Rate Decision.

A Washington dispatch received early today states: "The United States Supreme Court will be asked by the government to postpone decision in the Minnesota rate cases. The reason is that a question is involved in the same now pending before the Commerce Court, and the government desires the Supreme Court to know its attitude. This means that there will be no decision in the rate cases in the Supreme Court today.

More Speculation in Berlin.

Speculation has increased in Berlin within a week because of easier money conditions. But traders there are displaying a great deal of caution. It is called to Hearst newspapers from the German capital:

"The Bank of England's reduction in its discount rate from 3 per cent. to 4½ per cent. made a hopeful impression here, but it is not believed that the Reichsbank will reduce its minimum charge until London makes a second cut to 4 per cent. Some authorities predict that the Reichsbank will postpone action until June.

"The Paris situation prevents growth of confidence in the international money position.

"The flood of new issues, which is coming forward in volume almost without precedent, is absorbing the market's resources as fast as they accumulate.

"Contrary to reports which have evidently reached America, hoarded money has not by any means fully returned to the market thus far.

"How all the world's impending demands for capital can be met is still a problem whose solution is occasioning much speculation and also some anxiety here."

London Copper Quotations.

There was an exquisite slump in the London copper warrants market at the opening, spot and futures each declining 16s. 3d.

"Conditions have improved sufficiently in the copper situation to apparently warrant higher prices, and the market has had a good recovery from the recent low range touched more than a month ago," the National Copper Company remarks. "Sales during the last few weeks were earlier than for a long time previous, and both domestic and foreign manufacturers bought on a liberal scale.

"A rate of production such as was established in March can be readily absorbed, and if general conditions continue favorable developments undoubtedly experience a natural expansion and there by be in position to take care of a reasonable increase in production."

Financial News in Brief.

Although all of the April 1st, 1913, inventories are not completed, sufficient is ascertained to know that net earnings of the United States Rubber Company for the year will be from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 in excess of all dividends declared, including the increased dividends on common stock. The would change a deficit into a surplus within six months.

It is said that the Standard Oil has experience a natural expansion and there by be in position to take care of a reasonable increase in production.

PURE BUTTER BILL IS VETOED BY GOVERNOR

DIG INTO THIS RICH MINE OF 35,000 TOPICS

Notwithstanding the fact that the pure butter bill petitioned for by Mayor Fitzgerald and the Massachusetts Milk Inspectors' Association was passed by both houses is directly in line with the federal law, Governor Foss today vetoed it.

The enemies of pure food legislation fought the bill vigorously in both House and Senate, and even managed to give it a temporary set back through the engrossment stage by the chicanery of the Republican ring.

When the Senate, upon reconsideration, finally passed the bill, the rotten egg and other anti pure food lobbyists turned their attention to Governor Foss. The veto is the result.

The veto message follows:

The Veto Message.

April 18, 1913.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

Herewith I return, without my approval, An act to Establish a Standard for Butter and Oleomargarine, and providing punishment for dealers who sell butter containing more than 16 per cent. of moisture.

While the law belongs to the general class of pure food laws, and while I am heartily in sympathy with the protection of the public health through suitable legislation, I feel that this law, if approved, would serve to discredit the general pure food legislation.

I am informed that good butter normally contains 11 per cent. of moisture; that this percentage may be slightly greater if the butter is not sufficiently worked subsequent to churning, and that there is no simple and economical test by which the exact percentage of moisture can be determined.

Whether a rule of butter containing 17 or 16 per cent. of moisture can be determined only by a laboratory test which involves considerable expense; for example, from two to five dollars per test.

Standpoint of the Dealer.

The butter dealer, unable to determine for himself the exact amount of moisture, is confronted by both buyer and seller with the fact that a bill to pay a heavy fine if the moisture exceeds 16 per cent., irrespective of his entire ignorance of the conditions under which the butter was made and of the fact that the greater part of our butter is supplied from distant points.

Therefore, in order to comply strictly with this law, the dealer will be compelled to test each shipment, or even each tub or package of butter, and this inevitably will bring an immediate rise in the retail price of butter, probably amounting to several cents per pound.

If this increase in price were necessary for the protection of the public health, I would sign this bill, notwithstanding. But the issue in this instance is not the protection of any injurious substance into the butter, but merely that of excess moisture.

In my judgment, the case does not justify either the imposition of a fine upon a dealer guiltless of unlawful intention, or the rise in the price of this commodity which would follow the enforcement of the law.

Much Imported Butter.

The Massachusetts dairy interests operate at present under such an favorable conditions that the greater part of our butter is imported from other States. The trade thus comes under the jurisdiction of the federal government, which has very properly established rigorous laws relative to butter and other foodstuffs. Two of these laws relate specifically to oleomargarine and to butter, and under both laws a limit is fixed for the percentage of moisture which shall be permitted.

In my judgment, the enforcement of these laws should be left to the Federal government, the only agency which can reach the real source of the trouble, namely, the producer who is unscrupulous or careless in the manufacture of his product. This is the custom followed now very generally in regard to meats and package goods, and, in my judgment, it is entirely applicable to the butter industry.

I would earnestly warn against the passage of legislation which, while it purports to safeguard the public health, will have for its chief result the imposition of some added burden or hardship upon dealers.

(Signed) EUGENE N. FOSS.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The Daughter of Dana on Woman Suffrage

Her Father Made the New York Sun. We Would Rather Have Her Opinions on Suffrage Than the Opinions of the Sun of Today.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

The New York Sun says that official England, represented by the Home Secretary, has invented a plan for punishing Mrs. Pankhurst and imprisoning her to the limit.

Formerly, when the brave Englishmen had locked up Mrs. Pankhurst—simply for demanding her rights—and she, as the only protest of which her strength was capable, had refused to eat for a certain length of time, she was put out of jail.

The understanding was that as soon as she was strong enough to go back to jail, she would be taken back and her sentence go on.

On this plan, with a three-year sentence, Mrs. Pankhurst might be in jail one week, and out of jail three or four weeks, the length of time it takes for a woman of her years to recover from starvation.

The Sun rejoiced because the English officials decided that Mrs. Pankhurst should spend INSIDE THE JAIL WALLS EVERY HOUR OF HER SENTENCE. That is to say, if she starved for a week in jail, and then spent three weeks in the hospital recovering, she should be credited with only one week of her jail term, and the three weeks should be deducted.

This would compel her to serve out the term, to spend three entire years with intervals for recuperation—eating nothing during the three years in jail, and presumably taking nine or ten years to finish the sentence.

It is difficult to believe it, but the Sun actually praises the scheme for torturing more successfully an old, courageous woman.

We offer to the newspaper men of the country the contrasting opinions of the New York Sun of today, a newspaper which was created by Charles A. Dana, now dead, and the opinions of a daughter of Dana, Mrs. Brannan, who has inherited her father's capacity for radical thought and sympathy with the weak.

You heard what the Sun says. Hear what Mrs. Brannan has to say.

In a public letter she points out the fact that Mrs. Pankhurst is working only to get for her sex the rights that men have got for themselves, and in pursuit of which they have acted with violence and vicious lawlessness of which women are incapable.

Mrs. Brannan shows that the English, far from showing sympathy or especial consideration for women, have treated them with cruelty and have discriminated against them.

Any kind of a man, half drunk, three-quarters drunk, or entirely sober, can get up at a political meeting, ask questions and get an answer from a man presiding.

But when a woman gets up at a public meeting and asks a perfectly legitimate question, she is thrown out and taken to jail as a disturber.

The Prime Minister of England receives at any time, and cordially, deputations of MEN presenting grievances and asking for a remedy.

But he refuses to see the women, refuses to give their side a hearing—and that is far from treating women with special consideration.

Mrs. Brannan points out also that men who take part in political disturbances much more violent, much more harmful to life and to property than any suffragette demonstration, have always been treated with especial favor as political prisoners. She recalls the distinguished courtesy with which England treated the bandits of the Jameson raid and the authors of dynamite outrages, while treating as the commonest criminals women merely asking for their constitutional liberty.

Mrs. Brannan describes very justly the English rowdies and hoodlums who throw clods of earth at women speaking in public as the direct and worthy descendants of the large class of Englishmen that formerly engaged in bear-baiting, the rat pit and the torture of animals generally.

The so-called "noble-minded Englishmen, rebelling against the suffrage movement," are the direct and worthy descendants of the brutes that formerly tortured animals, that are now forbidden to indulge in that kind of torture, but that may still amuse themselves, as Mrs. Brannan says, "torturing, tormenting sentient beings with impunity."

The trouble with men, as Mrs. Brannan makes it clear, is that they approve of whatever women may do as long as they do WHAT MEN WANT THEM TO DO.

They only rebel when the women take matters into their own hands for their own protection.

She says:

> May I remind the critics of the militants that any violence shown by women when following the leadership of men is always condoned, and even applauded? Joan of Arc, the Maid of Saragossa, our own Moll Pitcher, are not called wild and hysterical viragos, but heroines. They dared and suffered in causes led by men, and patriotic societies erect monuments to their honored memory.

Mrs. Brannan ought to spend most of her time writing on this important question. And the New York Sun, which her father made, would be made much better if it would print what she has to say, rather than the very "manly" opinions—that is to say, unfair and cowardly views—which the New York Sun takes of such a woman as the courageous Mrs. Pankhurst.

Strong Spirit of Pope Pius X.

If the life of Pope Pius X. shall be prolonged, that life will acquire a new power to convince the world of the reality of spiritual forces.

The doctors have steadily insisted that by all the laws of physiology the Pope should die. Nevertheless the Pope lives on.

He lives on, no doubt, because there is a spirit in courageous and faithful men that moves and works by its own law, and with an energy that is sometimes great enough to cancel and suspend the laws of flesh.

Soon or late Pope Pius will die—in a day, a year, a decade. But the world will be the braver for the memory of the picture of him rising from his bed, in spite of the doctors, to sit by the window in the Vatican and look out once more upon the Spring.

"Now, boys, we've found out the best way to get next to Woodrow! You know he gets all his information out of the London Times! We must play up the English strong! We'll give him a spiel something like this: 'I say, Woodrow, dear old top, those are rippin' fine ideas you've got about the tariff! Of course, between ourselves, dear old chap, you're a bit tangled and you're barkin' up the wrong tree, but we don't mind as long as you let us 'ave a chawnce to trim that bloomin' little bounder, the Common People! Really, dear boy, it does our 'earts good to see you readin' the bally old Times! Awfter your term's over we'll make you a professor at Hoxford! Quite so! Just fahncy!' And remember, boys, if he offers you refreshments, don't use the words 'lemonade' and 'cigar'! Say you'll have a 'lemon squash' and a 'cheroot'! And don't say 'half-past four'; say 'hawf awfter four'! Now, all together:

'Rule Britannia, dontcherknow, Britannia rules the waves!

Are You a Good Neighbor?

If So, You Never Fawn, Flatter, Envy, or Are Jealous.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

ARE you a good neighbor?

What is a good neighbor?

Perhaps you are a royal good chum with the popular people of your town, and show them all sorts of courtesies, and you rejoice in their success, and you defend them against envy and malice.

That is a part of a good neighbor's duty.

But how do you conduct yourself if they get in trouble?

Are you ready to stand by them in poverty and sorrow as faithfully as in prosperity and popularity?

Will you be the last to censure, even if compelled to believe, when you hear they have made grievous mistakes? It is not a good neighbor's or a good Christian's place to deny facts or condone crime.

If you know that your neighbor has outraged the morals and broken the commandments, you are not to make yourself ridiculous by saying he is an innocent or injured individual.

But if you are a good neighbor you will think of his family, and you will not be afraid to show your friendship; you will not be afraid to say to the offender: "I am sorry for you; begin over, and start life anew." And you will be brave enough to help him to do it.

Again, are you a good neighbor only in time of trouble?

There are many such people to be found in country places. They are filled with envy of another's success. They show it by keeping aloof and assuming a cold and indifferent manner.

They try to find some flaw to pick in the popular or successful neighbor; they begrudge him all his pleasures and his triumphs; but let him fall sick or lose his money and they will fly to his rescue.

They will show him sympathy in his misery where they begrudged him congratulations in his happiness.

This is admirable in a way, yet not an altogether commendable quality.

If you are this type of a good neighbor do not take pride in it.

It indicates that you are filled with envy of another's success, and that you like to bestow favors in order to prove that you are in a superior position, rather than from a spirit of pure brotherly love.

If the latter spirit dominates you, you would be the really good neighbor, who rejoices in his brother's hour of pleasure and sorrows in his days of adversity.

It is a curious fact that hundreds of people flock to a man when sickness and death enter his home, and offer him every kind of attention and give the greatest proofs of unselfish regard for him, who have previously, in his times of prosperity and pleasure, been thorns in his flesh.

It is, of course, more admirable to treat a man kindly who is down than one who is up, if you have not nobility enough in your nature to treat him kindly at all times; but when you wait to show your good neighborliness until disease or death knocks at his door you are, in a certain measure, placing yourself with the birds of prey who follow after death and disease, and not with the song birds that sing him awake in the sunlit mornings of the Summer.

A good neighbor is never jealous; he never fawns; he never flatters; he never envies another's success; he congratulates him sincerely when happiness and prosperity come; he sympathizes sincerely when trouble and sorrow are at his door, and he encourages him to live down error and start life anew when he has made mistakes.

He makes his neighbor realize that he is at his command when needed, but he does not obtrude himself either in his joys or sorrows.

ARE YOU A GOOD NEIGHBOR?

Plea of the Guileless Jap

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

MOST HONORABLE PRESIDENT: Us friendly Japanee
Desire to build one stylish fort beside your Western sea;
We send distinguished Engineer, one man of High Renown,
To make our Fort in San Francisk great credit to the town.
But we the property can't hold, and so we come to you,
Most Honorable President, and ask you, "How can do?"

Most Honorable President: Your California State
She got one legislature-law that all is out of date.
We like to have one lovely dock to dry our warship in,
So he can be already when the war she shall begin.
But we can own no land at all, and though we got the gelt,
If we start out to build him dock, they tell us, "Chase yourself!"

Most Honorable President: If that war she shall come,
We shall be—what you call it in your language—on the bum;
We like to have our ships right by on San Francisco Bay,
So we can start right in to lick your Honored U. S. A.
But them mean California men they say no Japanee
Along no coast that they have got can own no property.

Most Honorable President: On you we lay our cause;
We ask you won't you go butt in and change them unjust laws?
We need some arsenals to hold our military stores
And houses so our soldier men won't need sleep out of doors.
And them rough men in San Francisk don't want the friendly Jap
To be there when the trouble come e to blow them off the map.

And so, genial President, please make that cruel State
Let us buy all the land we need inside that Golden Gate.
You send your U. S. Soldier out to Sacramento quick,
And tell them that us Japanee do—what you call it—kick.
We got to have them forts and docks—we need them dreadful bad,
And if you don't do what we ask—beware!—you make us mad.

Prize Fighting—Vulgar Exhibitions Are Degrading and a Worse Blot on Name of City Than Epidemic of Disease.

Written for Boston American by

Dr. C. H. PARKHURST

PRIZE FIGHTING, called for popular effect "boxing," is a question that is being considered in Boston, as well as in New York.

A letter recently received from a Boston correspondent asks: "Will you send me some literature upon the matter?"

To which I replied: "You need no literature. Attend one of the bouts. Inspect its brutality. Observe its blood-letting. That will be literature enough. Then go away and tell what you have seen. Describe the character of the crowd that gathered to the occasion. To the extent that you are yourself a human and not a brute you will go back furnished with all the argument needed for the persuasion of men that have been Christianized, or even civilized, or even semi-civilized."

Any man who has an honest desire to have the world's morals improved cannot afford to be indifferent to the effectiveness of those influences that are making for the world's degradation.

It is a matter of wonderment how much time and money hosts of good men in the pulpit, the church or the synagogue, or out of them, will expend in encouraging influences that are already operating for good, and yet be deaf and blind to the still more urgent influences that with unresisted constancy are pulling the other way.

If Malaria Existed, the Health Board Would Investigate.

If there were a malarial quagmire existing anywhere in Boston, the health department would promptly get busy with it or an impatient and imperilled public would insist on knowing why.

If the department confined its attention to such parts of the city as are already in a fairly sanitary condition and left unguarded the atic spots and the stench-holes, and the typhoid fever breeding grounds, the town would be up in arms.

Letting it be known that such spots exist is all that would be necessary to assure their cleansing.

Or, if it were brought to public notice that our water supply is infected with disease-germs, or our milk supply tainted with bacilli that feed on the bodies of children and that are hurrying them to premature graves, there would be no need for the diffusion of literature or the holding of mass meetings. A dozen or twenty deaths resulting from such cause would stir the health department and wake up the town.

Now, why is it that in a community as enlightened as our own, as apparently moral, and seemingly concerned to rid the city of influences that taint and pollute the minds of men and that corrupt the character of boys almost before they are old enough to have any character—why is it, I say, that the pulpit and the paw, and the great outside respectable world give so little attention and care to those debasing forces that are consuming manhood faster than the church and the synagogue can produce it?

This newspaper has repeatedly called emphatic attention to the matter of prize fights, in behalf of which not one respectable word can be said. Their whole character is beastly and their entire influence brutalizing. They draw crowds of hardened adults and make them still more hard. But—which is more serious—they gather an immense horde of youths that are not yet hard, but that certainly and irresistibly will be made so.

Ring Fights Pull Spectators Down to Level of the Fighters.

Prize fights pull them down to the coarse and vulgar level of the face-smashing, eye-blackening and blood-letting that are the salient features of the performances, and populate the underworld faster than the churches are putting a moral finish and religious polish on the denizens of the upper world.

It is not enough to hear about them, or to read about them, or to see them cartooned. Let the occupants of the pulpits and of the pews go over and sit close enough to the arena where these bull fights, performed by creatures nomanily human, sledgehammer each other, put out each other's light and split open each other's blood veins. That is the only way to become sufficiently intimate with the facts to realize all that they mean and to be able to talk about them with effect.

There is no man so white morally or so saintly religiously as to run any risk of being contaminated by close contact with the performers if he attends only out of honest desire to know the worst, in order that he may be in condition to sound in the ear of the public a warning note.

Bad Conditions Cannot Be Inspected Through Opera Glasses.

Bad conditions cannot be estimated by standing off at a distance and inspecting them through an opera glass. Physicians do not ordinarily diagnose the ailments of their patients over a telephone wire.

Those who are Christians, whether in the pulpit or out of it, cannot let the underworld alone without being responsible for what is going on in the underworld; and to spend all our time and effort in trying to make a few respectable people blossom at the same time that we are letting hordes of disrespectable people rot, is not the way to fulfill our obligations, nor is it the way to make the big city of Boston a great city.
